THE QUARANTINE ARSON.

Arrest and Admission to Bail of the Incendiaries.

AFFAIRS AT QUARANTINE YESTERDAY.

PROVISION FOR THE SICK.

DESCRIPTION OF THE RUINS.

Movement to Protect the Shipping

Action of the New-York and Brooklyn Boards of Health

Several of the leading Quarantine incendiaries were arrested at Tompkinsville early on Saturday morning, before they had got out of their beds, upon a warrant issued by Justice WELSH. Sergeant WATHERBURY and detectives WILDEY and STEPHENSON, with a rifle corps, went out and arrested CHARLES S. DE FOREST, Justice of the Peace. WM. MULLER and others. They were immediately conveyed to the City. RAY TOMPKINS was arrested on Friday evening. They were all taken before Justice WELSH, as will be seen from the report published below, and admitted to bail.

The Police force at Quarantine consists of 100 men under command of Captain WALLING, who led the forces at the seige of Seguine's Point. Each man is armed with a volcanic repeating rifle, loaded with twenty balls, which can all be fired in less than two minutes, the aggregate is equal to one thousand shots. They also have a brass 8 pound howitzer under charge of Sergeants DICKSON and KING. Each charge consists of 124 musket balls. They are provided with 150 rounds of these shot, and each of the Rifle corps has a large supply of ammunition. This is a formidable show, and appears to excite in the natives mingled emotions of astonishment and derision.

The rumor that the shipping would be burned created much excitement among the Captains of vessels, who came ashore and made anxious inquiries of Dr. WALLER on the subject. The Deputy Health Officer quieted their fears, and they returned on board. An extra anchor watch, however, was set on board each vessel, and many an old rusty musket was got up and loaded to give a warm reception to anybody approaching the vessels with evil designs.

The President of the United States was telegraphed to, and informed of the state of affairs. He immediately sent back directions to General SCOTT to make use of all necessary means at his disposal to protect the shipping and Government property. The frigate Sabine was moved from her moorings off the Battery to a place within striking distance of Quarantine.

The Hospital buildings will be replaced as soon as the necessary appropriation can be made. Meantime temporary accommodations will be provided for the sick, whose numbers are being daily augmented by fresh arrivals. Eighteen new cases of yellow fever have arrived since Friday. The patients were detained in the steamboat until the tent accommodations could be provided.

Drs. THOMPSON, BISSELL and WALSER, are doing all that lies in their power to alleviate their condition.

There are some 150 warrants out for various parties, and the Police are on the alert for those supposed to be concerned in the outrages.

The Incendiaries in Court.

The new Court Room under the Mayor's Office, presided over by Justice WELSH, was the scene of unusual excitement Saturday morning. RAY TOMPKINS, Justice CHARLES DE FOREST, MATHEW CARROLL, WM. MULLER, JACOB VANDERBILT, THOMAS GARRETT and JOHN C. THOMPSON, who had been arrested on warrants issued by the Magistrate, charging them with aiding in the recent burning and demolition of the Quarantine buildings, were brought before the Justice for examination. Warrants had been issued for the arrest of over a dozen persons, but the seven above named were the only ones who had been arrested. The prisoners, instead of manifesting any concern in the matter, appeared quite jolly, and received and returned the nods and congratulations of their various friends present, with perfect composure.

The officers in whose nominal custody the prisoners were, obligingly stood in the background and let matters take their natural course. A few serious persons were present and made preliminary comments upon the scene. They declared that the whole ceremony was the ridiculous opening of a sublime farce.

At 12 M.,—this being the hour assigned for the examination,—Justice WELSH stated his readiness to proceed in the case.

Three lawyers, headed by JAMES T. BRADY, Esq. appeared as counsel for the prisoners, and made a motion to admit them to bail. The prisoners waived any preliminary examination.

Justice WELSH said he would send the papers forthwith before the Court of General Sessions, and fix the bail of each prisoner at $2,000, to appear for trial.

Counsel expressed their satisfaction at the amount of bail named, but they objected to the papers being sent before any Court in this City, and desired the Justice to enter their protest to such effect.

Justice WELSH entered the desired protest, and then asked if the prisoners were ready with their bail.

Mr. BRADY remarked that CORNELIUS VANDERBILT would go bail for some of the prisoners, and that they were only waiting his arrival to have the necessary bonds signed. WM. MULLER and JOHN C. THOMPSON were immediately bailed—Mr. FRIDOLIN GOETZ becoming surety for the former, and Mr. W. H. VANDERBILT for the latter. It was nearly two hours before Mr. CORNELIUS VANDERBILT arrived.

During the interim the unbailed prisoners, their counsel, the officers and a few confidential friends sat in the Justice's private office, whiling away the time in pleasant conversation and getting off spicy jokes. Mr. VANDERBILT at once signed the bail bonds for the remaining five prisoners, and the whole party were forthwith liberated from custody. They retired from the Court feeling apparently as jolly and unconcerned as when they entered. The following are the affidavits made against the accused parties:

Eliska H Wildey, being duly sworn, deposes and says—That he is one of the officers of the Metropolitan Police Department; that on Wednesday last, at Staten Island, one Charles De Forest, a Justice of the Peace of the town of Castleton, of said island, told, disclosed, admitted, and confessed to this deponent, that on the night previous he, the said De Forest, by means of a ladder, ascended to, and descended from, the wall inclosing the Quarantine Hospital, into the Quarantine inclosure, and upon the Quarantine grounds; and that he then, within said inclosure, placed a bundle of straw within a large building forming part of the Hospital establishment, saturated said straw with camphene, and then fired the said combustible material by means of a lighted torch: that by said means the said building was burned and destroyed; he further boasted that if he had not sprained his ankle he would have burned certain other buildings within said inclosure, or, as he expressed it, "would have burned the lower buildings;" he said that a part of the crowd who were with him at the time promised him that if he would burn the big building on the hill (the building aforesaid, to which he applied the fire) that they would burn the lower buildings; that he performed his part of the agreement, but that the crowd backed out from performing their part of the agreement; he repeated said language in the presence of Mr. Connolly, reporter of the New-York Sun, and of Cristopher McDougall, one of the detectives of the Metropolitan Police; deponent further says that the building aforesaid and described as the big building on the hill, and which the said De Forest confessed to burning, was burned and destroyed on the night of the 1st of September, 1858, and that deponent has no doubt that said burning was the act of an incendiary; further, that the building so burned and destroyed was a part of the Quarantine Hospital establishment of the port of New-York, was within the Quarantine inclosure and was burned and destroyed for the purpose of impeding the Health Officer of the port of New-York in the discharge of the duties of his office, in enforcing the Quarantine laws of the State of New-York; the said De Forest also admitted, confessed and disclosed to this deponent, that he adjourned a case before him as a justice expressly to enable him to make arrangements to burn down the building so fired by him; the said case was an inquiry into the alleged absence of Mrs. Brannen, a case pending before said De Forest as Justice, in which inquiry deponent and said McDougall were engaged as detectives; the said adjournment was made on Monday, the 31st of August, over to Wednesday, the 1st instant; the said Justice De Forest, alleging in deponent's presence that he could not attend to the case before the 2d instant.

Thomas Carroll, of Tompkinsville, Richmond County, being duly sworn, doth depose and says: That he is steward of Quarantine, and that on the evening of the 1st of September, 1858, he saw one of the Metropolitan Policemen that is stationed at the Quarantine take the men belonging to the Quarantine (who were doing all that laid in their power to put out the fire) in charge, and endeavor to put them out of the Quarantine grounds; and that deponent remonstrated with said Policeman, and told them that the men were employés of the State; deponent then told Dr. Bissell of the circumstance, and he ordered the arrest of the said Policeman; and that the said Policeman was locked up in the jail of the Quarantine; and that deponent, in company with Dr. Bissell, was informed by Mrs. Ahern, the nurse of the Small-pox Hospital, that Egbert was one of the men who set fire to the buildings, and by order of Dr. Bissell he arrested said Egbert, and while taking him to the jail deponent was intercepted by another Policeman who knew the said Egbert, and asked deponent what he was going to do with Egbert; and that deponent informed said Policeman that he was taking him to jail by the order of Dr. Bissell; and that the said Policemen took hold of deponent in a violent manner, and tried to release the said Egbert, and said to deponent that he would take Egbert in charge; deponent then gave the said Egbert in charge to one of the employes of the jail, and deponent then arrested the Policeman and locked him up in the jail, and by some means to deponent unknown said parties were released from custody; and deponent further says that he does not know the names of the said Policemen, but can identify them if he ever sees them.

John P. Raymond being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he is a resident of Southfield, Richmond County; that he was in Tompkinsville on the night of the 2d of September instant; that he was present and witnessed the destruction of the State property at Quarantine; that he saw on the Quarantine grounds and within the Quarantine inclosure the following persons, residents of Richmond County, viz: Mathew Carroll, —— Muller, Ray Tompkins, Charles Stebbins and Jacob Vanderbilt; and that he verily believes the said Muller and Tompkins were abettors in the work of setting fire to the State's property.

Richard H. Thompson being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he is Health Officer of the port of New-York; that the persons named in the above affidavit were not permitted to enter the Quarantine grounds on the night of the 2d instant; that in being there they violated the Quarantine laws of this port, and therefore prays for their arrest and punishment.

Simeon T. Shiel, of the Marine Hospital, Richmond County, being duly sworn, doth depose and say, that P. O'Brien, of Tompkinsville, Staten Island, was one of the party that demolished the Quarantine buildings on the 2d day of September, 1858, and that deponent saw the said O'Brien breaking in the gate-house and other buildings with an axe, and that said O'Brien was very conspicuous in the affray.

John J. Taster, of Tompkinsville, Richmond County, being duly sworn, doth depose and say, that he saw —— Schwarm, of Stapleton, in said county, throw a barrel into the boat-house of the Quarantine, while said boat-house was on fire, so as to feed the fire, on the evening of Sept. 2, 1858.

Michael McCabe, of Tompkinsville, Richmond County, being duly sworn, doth depose and say, that he arrested Richard Garrett, in the Quarantine grounds, in the act of setting fire to one of the Quarantine buildings with a lighted torch, on the evening of the 1st of September, 1858, and that Garrett was locked up in the Quarantine jail by deponent, and by means unknown to deponent said Garrett made good his escape; and deponent further says that he saw John C. Thompson, of Tompkinsville, piling beds on one another and setting fire to the same, and throwing the beds against the hospital so as to fire the said hospital, and that he was aided and abetted by a large number of persons whom deponent could identify if he could see them, but does not know their names.

William H. Cunningham, of Tompkinsville, Richmond county, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he saw John Carroll, Captain O'Brien and Thomas Garrett breaking down the walls of the Quarantine inclosure with a battering ram, and that said parties were aided and abetted by a large number of persons whom deponent cannot identify; and to the best of deponent's knowledge Richard Garrett was one of the party, and the said offence was perpetrated on the evening of the 2d of September, 1858.

Alfred Van Cleef, of Tompkinsville, Richmond county, being duly sworn, doth depose and say—That he saw Charles De Forest, now here, set fire to the boat-house on the Quarantine grounds, situated in the said county of Richmond, and that said defendant was aided and abetted by William Muller —— Kiesler, on the evening of the 2d of September, 1858.

David McSymon, of Tompkinsville, Richmond county, being duly sworn, doth depose and say—That, on the evening of the 1st September 1858 he saw Richard Garrett and Patrick O'Hare under arrest in the Quarantine grounds, and deponent aided in placing them in jail; and that deponent saw John C. Thompson and Ray Tompkins come out of the house of Dr. Thompson, and John C. Thompson had a lamp in his hands.

Death of the Man Shot at Quarantine.

CORONER'S INQUEST AND VERDICT.

FRANK MATHEWS, the stevedore who was shot on the morning of the first incendiary attack on the Quarantine buildings at Tompkinsville, died, on Saturday, at the New-York Hospital. Coroner PERRY held an inquest on the body yesterday, but was unable to procure the attendance of any witnesses except Dr. J. W. HOOKER, the House-surgeon at the Hospital. The statement of MATHEWS has already been published in the TIMES. The Coroners, for some reason, did not feel it incumbent upon them to take his ante-mortem examination. The evidence given by the Doctor corroborates the published statement.

Dr. HOOKER testified that the deceased was admitted to the Hospital at 9 o'clock on the morning of the 2d inst., suffering from a gun-shot wound in the back. MATHEWS told him that he was shot the evening previous at Quarantine, Staten Island, with a musket in the hands of one of the attaches of the Hospital. Upon his admission to the Hospital, he was a good deal prostrated, but had lost but little blood. The wound was in the eleventh dorsal vertebræ, about an inch to the right of the mediam line. There were three small openings and one of them could be traced about four inches. The wounds produced a paralysis of the lower limbs. A post-mortem examination of the body showed that the ninth and tenth vertebræ were injured. In the tenth vertebræ was found a large wad of paper embedded in the muscular tissue. Four slugs were found in the ninth and tenth vertebræ, and in the adjacent parts of the body seven additional slugs were found. Internal hemorrhage was the immediate cause of death.

There being no further evidence, the Jury rendered the following verdict:

"That FRANK MATHEWS, the deceased, came to his death from a gun-shot wound received during the late riot at Quarantine ground, Staten Island, Sept. 1, 1858, at the hands of some person unknown to the Jury."

The deceased was 24 years of age, and a native of Holland. He has been a sailor during the past six years, and was last employed on the brig Undine, which runs between this port and Hanover. He had been employed at Quarantine about six weeks.

Appearance of Quarantine.

The hands of the Vandals of Staten Island were not raised in violation of law yesterday. With an exhibition of humanity which must have possessed all the novelty of a new sensation to the incendiaries, the sick were allowed to rest in the barn and tents provided for them, and to receive the attentions of the physicians, and of Commissioner GARRIQUE and others, for their comfort and restoration. But the evidence of their villainous work was there in the tottering pillars of the Women's Hospital; in its broken walls; in the blackened interior of the "dead-house;" in the ruins of buildings, from which the sick were dragged and thrown out upon the damp ground amid the storm; in the destruction of ornamental trees, and shrubs, and flowers; and of all that industry, experience and taste had devised to render the suffering immigrant as comfortable and pleasant as his condition would permit. The air of neatness, so agreeable to the invalid, was replaced by a desolation that was painful to look upon; and the quiet so necessary to successful treatment of disease was broken by the noise of a camp filled with armed men.

Around the walls there were thousands of spectators climbing up, and in every possible way endeavoring to get a view of the ruin within. The breaches were examined with great apparent curiosity; and the man, woman or child who could tell where the first sally was made, or where the treacherous firemen went through, to increase instead of to extinguish the flames, was sure of a crowd of eager and admiring listeners. The vigilance of the Police was a sore drawback upon the gratification of the public curiosity. The main entrance was closely guarded; and if any had the temerity to scale the walls, they were summarily ejected. Just inside the main entrance is the camp of the armed Police. On the right the Commissary General has his quarters, with an inviting array of camp kettles, bread and cheese, and tureens of turtle soup, the principal ingredient of which is furnished from the turtle-pen of the Health Officer. Further along on the main road the tents of the Police are pitched, and from there they are detailed on sentinel duty around the walls and throughout the grounds. From the tents of the Police until near the United States Government storehouse there is nothing but blighted trees and charred ruins. Beyond them, on the same line, are the marines sent down to guard the property of the United States Government, which they do by interfering with those who are engaged in caring for the sick, while their Captain hob-nobs with the leader of the Vandals, whom he brings to his quarters in a Government boat, in violation of the expressed wish of the Health Officer of the port.

On the rising ground the tents for the sick are ranged, and there those who have not been provided for elsewhere are attended. From that point you command a view of the criminal work that has been done. From other points the ruins of one, two, or three buildings are visible, but there you have the ruins of thirty-two edifices fully in view; and from there you can form the best idea of the extent of the injury that has been done. You can there see, in all their length and breadth, the degrading evidences of a deed more villainous, and as cruel, than you will care to dwell upon; and you can there regret that, while the Government has the power, it has not the inclination, to punish the offenders. Gathered in and around the Nautilus Hotel, they laugh when punishment is spoken of. They allege that such an act is not punishable in Richmond County; that there are not twelve men in it that would find them guilty, and that the political importance of the Island would protect them against molestation from the State authorities, be they Republicans, Americans, or Democrats.

Quarantine Yesterday.

CONDITION OF THE SICK—ERECTION OF TEMPORARY PLACES OF SHELTER—APPREHENSIONS OF FRESH OUTRAGES—SINGULAR CONDUCT OF CAPTAIN RICH, OF THE MARINES—RAY TOMPKINS ON THE QUARANTINE GROUNDS—THE POLICE FORCE.

Notwithstanding the previous announcement that the sick at Quarantine had been comfortably provided for, their situation remained unchanged up to a late hour Saturday evening, at which time a portion of them were provided with tents, others were placed in Dr. THOMPSON's barn, the only remaining building on the ground, and some twenty of the convalescent were conveyed to Ward's Island during a pouring rain, late on Saturday afternoon. Those who were obliged to occupy the barn were very uncomfortable, and their groanings could be distinctly heard by the policemen on duty at a distance of three hundred yards. Eight additional cases of yellow fever arrived on Friday, and ten cases on Saturday and Sunday. They would be disposed of like the other cases.

Thus far the Deputy Health Officer has had his office in the open air, his desk being placed against the south fence. Yesterday a small temporary office was put up for his use, which will be ready for occupancy to-day. A large load of lumber was sent down on Sunday, which was discharged upon the Quarantine dock. A building 200 feet long, 25 feet wide and of one story, will be put up immediately for the temporary accommodation of the sick.

Deputy-Superintendent CARPENTER yesterday visited the Island. Mr. CROLIUS, Superintendent of Public Buildings, also visited the ruins in company with Mr. VOORHIS the contractor. The work of erecting this temporary structure will proceed at once, and be ready for use in a week or ten days. Iron buildings however will be substituted for the shanties which have been destroyed. Though denominated shanties, these buildings were pronounced excellent establishments for the purposes designed, being 120 feet long, 25 feet wide, well ventilated at the top and sides, and set up on brick pillars three feet from the ground.

The small pox hospital can be repaired with trifling expense, as the walls are not much damaged, but the St. Nicholas, Women's Hospital, Dr. BISSELL's and Dr. WALKER's houses, as well as all the other buildings, are total ruins, and the walls will have to come down. Many of the most beautiful trees near the burnt buildings have been ruined. The breaches in the walls have been boarded up, and the police are now wholly confined to the protection of the inside premises. The Castleton Board of Health announced that they would arrest them if they ventured outside the walls.

Rumors continued rife that the houses included within the infected district would be fired, and their occupants have been under constant apprehensions that these threats would be carried out, and have spent sleepless nights in consequence. On Saturday night two sisters who occupy the house in which Mr. MILES died a short time since, heard a noise outside, and on looking out one of them saw a crowd as if making efforts to fire her dwelling. The heavy rain, however, rendered the attempt abortive, and they went away. If these proceedings are renewed, and the private property of citizens destroyed, it is said there will be a serious riot among the mobocrats themselves, for while they consider fire a useful article in getting rid of State property, they are wholly disagreed as to the propriety of its application to the property of private citizens, many of whom are o their side.

The large coal heap of 600 tons continues to burn fiercely. Mr. CARRIQUE, of the Commissioners o Emigration, applied to HARRY HOWARD to permit an Engine Company to go down on the Staten Island boat, and put out the fire, in order to save part of the coal not yet burnt. Mr. HOWARD peremptorily refused. As the Engine Company in the village will not render the required assistance, the whole will be destroyed.

A strict guard is kept at the gate, and none are admitted in or out without a pass from Doctor WALKER. Mr. LOCKE, the United States Inspector, with Capt. RICH, who has charge of the marines, made an effort yesterday to get RAY TOMPKINS admitted, under the pretext that they wished to have him dine with them.

The gate-keeper, Captain DOYLE, refused, however, to permit him to pass the gate. Captain RICH then went to Doctor THOMPSON and asked of him permission for a friend to pass in whom he wished to dine with him. "Certainly," replied the Doctor, and immediately begun to write the necessary pass. "What is the name of your friend?" he inquired. "Mr. RAY TOMPKINS," answered RICH. "I cannot let in any such man," said Dr. THOMPSON. "Will you put that in writing?" RICH inquired. Doctor T. said he would, and immediately gave him a note, certifying that Captain RICH had made a request to have RAY TOMPKINS admitted to the Quarantine inclosure, and that the request was denied. This note, it is alleged, Captain RICH handed to the old gentleman at the gate as a pass, saying at the same time, "this is my friend, and made an effort to get TOMPKINS through the gate. A person near by, who observed the imposition attempted to be practiced, told the gate-keeper it was not a pass; by which time he had read the paper. This ruse having failed, Mr. LOCKE directed his boatmen to go to the Quarantine Landing with the United States barge, take TOMPKINS in, and land him at the United States store-house inside the Quarantine limits. The order was obeyed, and TOMPKINS, RICH and LOCKE, it is said, dined together. In the course of two hours the same barge conveyed the party back to the Quarantine Landing.

This flagrant disregard of the Quarantine authorities by a United States officer, in the most offensive form, was severely commented on by those who witnessed the transaction. Had the Health Officer observed the movement, and ordered the arrest of the intruder, it is more than probable it would have precipated a collision between the Marines and the Police force. The law of Congress of 1790, makes it the duty of United States Army and Navy officers to assist in the enforcement of Health laws before all other regulations.

This same Captain RICH interfered with Mr. CARRIQUE in landing provisions at the United States Storehouse dock for the sick, when there was no other convenient landing-place, and forbid him from carrying patients past the Store-house, and taking them away from the landing in a steamboat. His whole conduct since he was sent to the place in charge of the Marines, has shown that his sympathies were wholly with the lawless party.

The following is the list of officers of the Police force at Quarantine:

First Section, Sergeant GLENNEY.
Second Section, Sergeant VOISNEY.
Third Section, Sergeant PRESTON.
Fourth Section, Sergeant TAFT.

GENERAL OFFICERS.

Sergeant-Major, WATERBURY.
Captain, WALLING.
Commissary General, BERVOORT.
Steward, STILLWELL.
First Assistant Steward, REYNOLDS.
Second Assistant Steward, MCKAY.
Cook, SULLIVAN.
First Company Artillery Sergeant, DICKSON.
Gunner, KING.

Action of the Health Commissioners.

The Health Commissioners met at noon, Saturday. Alderman CLANCY read a report with regard to discharging vessels in the lower bay, endeavoring to refute the charges of extortion at Quarantine. Alderman CLANCY explained that in consequence of the nature of the work, it was necessary that high wages should be paid, but the schedule of prices was the same that had been agreed upon by men engaged in the business, and the rate of storage only double that of the Chamber of Commerce. This year, in consequence of the number of vessels arriving, a large portion had to be sent to the lower anchorage, and thus made the expense heavier. The report was signed by Mayor TIEMANN, JOHN CLANCY, CHARLES H. HASWELL, and the Commissioners.

It was arranged that the five or six small-pox patients now at Quarantine, should be sent to the Almshouse.

Dr. THOMPSON said, with regard to the report submitted by him some time since, in favor of employing hulks for the storage of cargoes, that the Board had adopted the report, and referred the matter of employing hulks to the Mayor, with full power. This communication referred to the action of the Mayor in the premises. The Mayor had suggested the double charge, which was approved by the Board. The cry of extortion, it would be seen, was entirely incorrect, and instead of being blamed, the action of the Board should be approved of by the parties interested in the cargoes.

So much in reference to the particular charge of extortion: he desired to add something as to lighterage and stevedoring at Quarantine this season. He had noticed attacks on the Board in newspapers, in this connection, but the charges were groundless. The Health Officer made certain propositions on the subject, showing the necessity, in view of the public health, and the interests of commerce, that just enough stevedores to do the work, and no more, should be employed. He also exhibited a scale of prices, indorsed by a dozen leading stevedore houses, which prices were scrutinized by the Board and fully approved. Some weeks after, other parties applied for the privilege of discharging cargoes at Quarantine, but the prices they proposed to charge were no less than the prices fixed by the Board.

He desired to say a word as to the charges made against the Health Officer personally, in connection with the recent conflagrations at Quarantine. These charges had been used by one or two papers partially as apologizing for the recent outrages. It was represented that the grievances of which Staten Islanders had complained was that the Health Officer had allowed stevedores and others to pass out of Quarantine with the garments which they had worn while at work inside. This charge was wholly untrue. No person had been allowed to go out without changing his clothes, and even then they were allowed to leave only with the understanding that they would return in a few hours. No sane man would apprehend danger to arise from such permission. These charges were gotten up and manufactured for another purpose, which was to remove the Quarantine, for the purpose of having an excuse for making an onslaught on the premises. Such an apology had been sought for for years, even before his administration. It was in keeping with other equally unfounded charges gotten up by the same parties.

When they consider that the parties who made these charges actually entered the Hospital and aided in carrying out yellow-fever patients, they could not but see that the horrid dread of infected stevedores was only a pretence.

These charges of extortion did not come from the merchants interested, but from the Sepoys of Staten Island, who burned the Hospitals. In his whole course and conduct he had the interest and health of the port at heart.

The Mayor desired the public to understand that he sent for Messrs. NYE and TALLMADGE in reference to protecting the buildings; but he was unable to find them. Subsequently the Vice-President of the Commissioners of Emigration told him that TALLMADGE had agreed to send sixty men down; but, on meeting TALLMADGE in the evening at the great dinner, that officer told the Mayor that no requisition had been made upon him, so he had sent down a few detectives. He did not believe that there would be any more trouble; for his part, he thought the excitement had been much exaggerated. Mr. TALLMADGE then went to dinner. The Mayor said he thought the Marines would be sufficient protection for the Quarantine buildings. He had done all that was in his power in the premises. He wanted it understood that those who had burned the buildings had not suffered from extortion. The secret of the whole outrage, in his opinion, was the desire of certain real estate owners to get rid of Quarantine, in order to increase the value of their property. If he had his way, instead of removing Quarantine, he would take thirty acres more of land, put up fire-proof buildings, and keep troops there to protect them.

On motion of Dr. ROCKWELL, the report of Alderman CLANCY was adopted.

The Mayor said he met with the Commissioners of Emigration and Governor KING yesterday, when tents were ordered down to Quarantine. These were some accommodation, but shanties ought to be put up temporarily.

Mr. HASWELL moved that a sufficient number of hemlock boards and joists for shanties be sent down, to be put up under the direction of the Commissioners of Repairs and Supplies. The motion prevailed.

Mr. MILLER said there was no doubt the public would uphold them in all measures necessary to protect the public health. It was not the mercenants, but the people of Staten Island, who had made the outcry about extortion. He was surprised on Thursday night to find that no Police had been sent down, and to hear Mr. TALLMADGE say he had sent down a few detectives only, and there was no occasion for alarm. He thought the marines were not wholly blameless in the matter of the burning.

The Mayor said they had clearly failed in their duty. They were bound to protect the property of Quarantine.

Dr. ROCKWELL read the law on the subject, and insisted that it was the duty of the marines to protect the Quarantine buildings.

Mr. HASWELL moved that the Health Officer be directed to report to the Board, and to prosecute all persons ascertained to have invaded Quarantine. The motion was carried, and after the transaction of some routine business, the Board adjourned.

Action of the Commissioners of Emigration.

The Commissioners of Emigration met in Worth-street on Saturday morning; the President, GULIAN C. VERPLANCK, Esq., in the Chair. The meeting was private.

The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the President and Commissioner CARRIGAN be appointed a committee to confer with the Mayor or Board of Health, in regard to the present situation of matters at Quarantine, and to make such suggestions to the said Board as may be proper for the accommodation of persons other than emigrants, who may arrive at this port affected with any infectious or contagious disease.

Messrs. BOWEN and NYE appeared before the Commissioners and communicated the state of affairs at Staten Island, and what had occurred during the last night.

The President of the Board, Mr. G. C VERPLANCK, together with Mr. CARRIGAN, were appointed a Committee to represent to the Board of Health the immediate necessity of further accommodations, in the shape of wood or iron buildings, for the relief of patients laboring under yellow fever and other contagious diseases.

The Committee were instructed also to represent to the Board of Health, the inability of the Commissioners, in the present state of their finances, to apply the funds necessary for this purpose, and their opinion that they were not authorized to spend money for the purpose, the use of their funds being limited to the cause of emigrant aliens.

The Board adjourned to Monday.

Action of the Brooklyn Board of Health.

A special meeting of the Brooklyn Board of Health was held Saturday morning, Mayor POWELL in the Chair.

After the usual preliminary business had been disposed of, the following communication, by special request, was read:

BROOKLYN, Sept. 4, 1858.

Dr. SAMUEL K. BOYD, Health Officer—Dear Sir: Please allow me to suggest prompt and stringent action by yourself and the Board of Health, for the prevention of exposure to yellow fever by the burning of the Quarantine buildings. The easiness of access to the infected district may cause very disastrous results, unless decisive measures are adopted and rigidly enforced on the part of Brooklyn.

Yours, respectfully, J. L. DOUGLASS,
Alderman of the Tenth Ward.

The communication, by consent, was laid on the table. The Mayor subsequently stated that the Police Commissioners had directed the Harbor Police to prevent people from landing in Brooklyn, and he had also directed the Health Wardens to exercise unusual diligence.

This statement called up Health Warden FROST, who stated that in pursuance of the order of the Board, he had traced a lighterman from the infected district to a house in Tillary-street; that he had there incarcerated himself in an attic room, bolted the door and refused to surrender when ordered so to do. Officer FROST asked for instructions. The Board, with commendable zeal, authorized the officer to use all necessary force to arrest the obnoxious individual. The arrest was subsequently effected without bloodshed.

After the transaction of some other business, of no general interest, the Board adjourned.

Protection of the Shipping.

The threats by the Staten Islanders, on Friday, to burn the shipping, created intense excitement among the owners of vessels lying at Quarantine, as well as among the merchants generally.

A Committee of Underwriters and Merchants waited on Collector SCHELL, on Saturday afternoon, and the following documents presented to him, asking prompt action on his part for the protection of the shipping and cargoes at Quarantine:

NEW-YORK, Sept. 3, 1858.

To Honorable AUGUSTUS SCHELL, Collector of the Port of New-York:

SIR: The undersigned, underwriters of this City, are informed that the mob at Staten Island have threatened to burn the vessels there quarantined. These vessels have very large and valuable cargoes on board, of dutiable and undutiable goods. They respectfully ask that a sufficient force may be sent down to protect the property from destruction.

J. D. JONES, for Atlantic Mutual Ins. Co.
RICHARD LATHER, Great Western Ins. Co.
ELLWOOD WALTER, for Mercantile Mutual Ins. Co.
ALFRED EDWARDS, President Pacific Mutual Ins. Co.
DANIEL DRAKE SMITH, President Commercial Trust Ins. Co.

NEW-YORK, Sept. 3, 1858.

A. SCHELL, Esq., Collector:

The undersigned, representing very important interests in the cargoes of vessels recently arrived from the Island of Cuba, and now lying in Quarantine, for the safety of which, in the present excited state of feeling in the vicinage of Quarantine, there is reason to feel the most serious apprehensions, beg leave to call the attention of the Collector to the subject, and to solicit from him such protection to the property imperilled as is so manifestly required by existing circumstances.

It is currently reported, and we believe on reliable authority, that threats are already made to set fire to the shipping at the Upper Quarantine, and recent events sufficiently indicate the intentions of a portion of the community in relation to that matter. We remain, very respectfully, your obedient servants,

Grinnell, Minturn & Co.,	Simon de Virrier,
J. M. Ceballos,	D. Curtiss & Dyckman,
Thomson & Hunter,	Galway, Canado & Teller,
Peter V. King & Co.,	Pesant Bros,
Moses Taylor & Co.,	R. St. Jurgo,
Morris Bros., Navuno & Co.,	Robert & Williams,
E. D. Morgan & Co.,	A. D. Cates, brig State of Maine,
Ponvert & Co.,	C. B. Lord, brig Ortolan.
Gladin & Rubira,

CUSTOM-HOUSE, COLLECTOR'S OFFICE,
Sept. 3, 1858—4 o'clock P. M.

Hon. HOWELL COBB, Secretary of the Treasury:

SIR: The destruction of the State buildings at Quarantine was completed last night. The presence of the marines saved the Government buildings. I have received a letter from a large number of persons asking protection for their ships and dutiable goods lying at Quarantine, which are threatened with destruction. As the Government is largely interested for duties, I desire that the Sabine, lying off the Battery, may be directed to take position to protect the shipping, or that I may be authorized to charter a steamboat, and have an order for troops from Governor's Island to man her for that purpose.

AUGUSTUS SCHELL, Collector.

The Collector then visited the United States frigate Sabine, and learned from her commander, R. D. THORBURN, that she could be got under way immediately upon the receipt of the necessary orders, and manifested the utmost readiness to render every assistance in his power for the protection of the shipping.

Upon the return of the Collector to the Custom House, the following dispatches were received from Secretary COBB:

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3, 1858.

AUGUSTUS SCHELL, Collector, New-York:

Call upon General SCOTT, who is telegraphed by the Secretary of War, and cooperate in the protection of shipping and other public property threatened by rioters at Staten Island. HOWELL COBB.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3, 1858.

AUGUSTUS SCHELL, Collector, New-York:

The Secretary of the Navy has telegraphed the Commander of the Navy Yard, Brooklyn, to furnish an armed vessel and to cooperate with you. See him and let General SCOTT know of this additional order. HOWELL COBB.

The Collector next visited the residence of Gen. SCOTT, but he had left the City. He then visited the Navy-yard and obtained the following order from Commodore KEARNEY, in obedience to instructions which he had received from the Secretary of the Navy:

NAVY-YARD, NEW-YORK, Sept. 4, 1858.

SIR: Upon the receipt of this you will proceed immediately with the vessel under your command to protect the foreign and American shipping and other property at Quarantine.

L. KEARNEY, Commandant.

This order was personally delivered to Captain THORBURN by the Collector; the ship was lying with two anchors ahead and fifty fathoms of chain. In one hour the ship was under way, in tow of two steamtugs, and was anchored near the shipping at night, when two guns were fired as a hint to the unruly spirits that they could not proceed any further in their incendiary work with impunity. In the morning the Sabine appeared like an apparition to the astonished gaze of the islanders, with her ports open, ready for action. Had any hostile movement been made the Sabine's boats would very soon have made prisoners of every one engaged in the attempt. At last acounts everything was quiet.

Quarantine News.

On Sunday morning, the brig Iremaculada, from St. Jago, bound for Bermuda, put into Quarantine in distress. Hardly a man on board was fit for duty—most of the crew being either dead or sick of yellow fever. The Captain died when a few days from St. Jago, from the black vomit, and was buried at sea. Shortly afterwards the first mate sickened of the same disease, and also died. Then followed the second mate and two of the crew.

At this time not a man was left on board who understood navigation. The crew were all sick and desponding from the fact that even those partly able to work were unable to manage the bark, and signals of distress were accordingly hoisted. The first vessel hailed sent a boats-crew to see what was wanted, and when requested to send a man on board to navigate the vessel home, absolutely refused, though there were several on board who could have been spared. Another vessel was also hailed, but with like result. At last a Boston ship was spoken, and with generosity sent a man who navigated the Iremaculada to New-York. Dr. GILLETTE on visiting the vessel, found her to be in a bad condition, and after caring for the sick as best he could, sent her some provisions. She will receive the closest attention from the Quarantine authorities.

Quarantine Troubles.

Those in authority, who have control of the Quarantine, seem to have verified the old adage of "closing the stable door when the horse is gone," in regard to the protection of the buildings destroyed by cowardly wretches. Ten or twenty efficient men, properly armed, might have prevented the entire destruction of the hospitals, but it seems that not a single person, excepting one of the Doctors, attempted resistance; and if we may believe the reports published, some of the Harbor Police (chums of TOM BURNS, perhaps) assisted in the riot. Shall such carelessness be permitted any longer by citizens who elect men to office with the view of having some rights protected. The Commissioners should proceed at once to have new buildings erected; by proper exertion suitable hospitals may be completed before Winter sets in. A proper guard should be appointed to act as Quarantine police exclusively, having full power to arrest any person attempting to interfere or molest the most important safeguard that a commercial City, like New-York, can have. In the meantime let wooden buildings be put up as temporary shelter, until the more substantial ones are finished.

The excuse which the leaders in these riotous proceedings give for their conduct would not be tolerated, I believe, even by a Tombs skyster. If a man builds a costly dwelling alongside of a mill stable, away from a good neighborhood, and then wishes to destroy it because it annoys him, and interferes with the beauty of his property, will not people say he is a fool? What is the difference? RIGHT.

The Blount Affair—Letter from Capt. De Riviere.

NEW-YORK, Monday, Aug. 2, 1858.

To the Editor of the Courrier des Etats Unis:

Finding myself at last delivered from the judicial prosecutions to which I have been so unjustly subjected, I come to ask of you a rectification of the facts which have been communicated to you, and which have been so calumniously applied to my person. I declare that I have never in any way been connected with fraudulent bankruptcies, consequently that I have never been mixed up with judicial proceedings in France. Such matters may relate to an individual whose name resembles mine, but I am indignant that they should be attributed to me or to any member of my family.

Since the year 1844, I have not ceased to belong to the French army, and I am now on furlough, (en non activité,) for temporary infirmities resulting from wounds received in the Crimea. (The very words of the document signed by Marshal VAILLANT, Minister of War.)

As to the matter which has served as a pretext for the persecution of which I have been the victim—the pretended abduction of Miss BLOUNT—I declare all that has been said a lying and malicious invention. I personally deny having ever abducted Miss BLOUNT, and still less Madame BLOUNT. My part in that affair was

STATEMENT OF THE TRUSTEES.

After a delay so long protracted that it would be inexcusable were it not for the recollection of the unhappy retarding cause, the death of Mr. JOHN N. WILDER, the Trustees of the Dudley Observatory have issued their pamphlet. It is a stout one of 174 pages—stout in argument and fact as in bulk, and altogether a settler for the Scientific Council and Mr. GOULD. It is surprising that with such an armory of weapons, the Trustees have not been tempted to use them hurriedly and indiscreetly. Their self-control does them credit.

To render their case intelligible, the writer enters into a history of the establishment, which we present briefly in a chronological shape.

ORIGIN OF THE ENTERPRISE.

1851. Plan of an Albany Observatory first suggested by Dr. J. H. ARMSBY. Adopted and urged by Mr. THOMAS W. OLCOTT.

Advice of Professor MITCHELL solicited July 28. Furnished, and found replete with encouragement and wise suggestions. He thinks $25,000 enough to begin on.

DR. ARMSBY circulates a subscription paper to raise this sum, Mr. OLCOTT being the first to subscribe. General VAN RENSSELAER gives seven acres of land, a gift which has largely enhanced his adjoining lots. Professor MITCHELL approves the site. Messrs. BACHE, PIERCE and HENRY, at a meeting at the Mechanics' and Farmers' Bank, endeavor to throw cold water on the enterprise.

SEPT.—Mr. OLCOTT induces Mrs. DUDLEY to subscribe $10,000, a donation to which she added a few weeks later $3,000 more. This she did with the impression that Professor MITCHELL was to have charge.

MARCH, 1852.—Thomas W. Olcott, William H. De Witt, Alden March, Joel Rathbone, Robert H. Pruyn, John B Tibbitts, Ormsby M. Mitchell, Samuel H. Ransom, Gilbert C. Davidson, James H. Armsby, John N. Wilder, Isaac W. Vosburgh, Eliphalet Wickes and Stephen Van Rensselaer were constituted a body corporate and politic forever, by the name and style of "The Dudley Observatory, of the city of Albany," by act of the Legislature.

1853.—Plan of the building furnished by Professor MITCHELL, and the building commenced.

AUGUST.—The purchase of a heliometer urged by Dr. C. H. F. PETERS, an Assistant in the Coast Survey. Further urged by Superintendent BACHE, who proposed to furnish a transit instrument and observers from the Coast Survey, free of expense, to the Trustees, if they would procure the heliometer, the use of which was of the utmost importance to his labors. The proposal acceded to by Dr. ORMSBY; and Mr. OLCOTT induces Mrs. DUDLEY to advance $6,000 for the purpose. Prof. PIERCE proposes a Scientific Council, as an aid to the Trustees. Proposal accepted; Messrs. GOULD, BACHE, PIERCE and DAVIS being named, the latter name being afterwards struck out at the request of Mr. GOULD, a personal enemy, and that of Prof. HENRY substituted.

MRS. DUDLEY, at Mr. OLCOTT'S request, advances $8,000 more, in order that the heliometer might be of the largest size.

Mr. OLCOTT contributes a Meridian circle, cost $5,000. Prof. BACHE lends a transit instrument, costing $1,500.

Mr. ERASTUS CORNING authorizes a clock to be made at the expense of $1,000; a gift which the Observatory has never received and has no hope of receiving.

SEPT.—GOULD goes to Europe, at the expense of the Trustees, to order instruments; engages to have all the instruments made and in use by Aug. 1, 1856, in time for the 28th, when the Observatory was to be inaugurated.

DEC. 29.—GOULD returns An extravagant bill of expenses paid by the Trustees.

JAN. 1856.—GOULD offers to furnish "time" to various railroads for certain important additions to the revenues of the Observatory; offers and terms accepted. GOULD boasts himself of his business tact—engages to supply the "time" by the 1st of August of that year; has not done so yet.

The job of making the heliometer given to Mr. SPENCER, a friend of GOULD'S. GOULD wants to have SPENCER sent to Europe, and Mr. JOHN GAVITT sent with him to keep certain visionary ideas of his in check. The savant and his keeper accordingly travel at the cost of the Trustees.

GOULD still holds out the idea that the instruments could be received and in use before the 1st of August. In the meantime, he tears the building to pieces, adds wings to the main fragment, and leaves everything unfinished.

JUNE.—Orders the meridian circle to be engraved with the inscription, "The Olcott Meridian Circle.

JULY.—Devotes his time and mind wholly to horology, or clock-work, leaving the Observatory to build itself

Dr. C. H. F. PETERS detailed by Superintendent of Coast Survey to the Observatory, with the recommendation of being a man "of vast experience, practical ability, and great genius."

JULY 30.—GOULD writes from Cambridge: "The clocks are progressing, and the chronograph, number one, is nearly completed. I think we are very fortunate in having the aid of so skillful and energetic a man as Dr. PETERS, in arranging matters." The Trustees were of the same opinion.

AUG. 1.—The Observatory in the condition of a ruin—instruments not received—everything in confusion.

AUG. 11.—Professor BACHE suggests the idea to Mr. OLCOTT of dropping the name of "Dudley Observatory."

AUG. 14.—Mrs. DUDLEY, at the instance of Mr. OLCOTT, endows the institution with $50,000, and Mr. OLCOTT declines to drop it.

AUG. 28.—The inauguration, at which Mr. GOULD addressing the multitude apostrophized an old clock on the platform, as the splendid gift of Mr. CORNING, whereas Mr. CORNING'S ungiven gift, was lying unfinished in a German work-shop. In the same speech Mr. GOULD alluded to Dr. ORMSBY and Mr. OLCOTT, in terms of ridiculous panegyric.

SEPT.—Mr. OLCOTT gives a further donation of $10,000 to the institution; in reference to which Professor BACHE writes at the moment:

"In point of fact, I know, the donation is not one-fifth of Mrs. DUDLEY'S. But I cannot help considering, that, all circumstances considered, it is many, many times as great."

AND Mr. GOULD: "Your letter brought the first tidings of Mr. OLCOTT'S noble gift. A greater one, in truth, than Mrs Dudley's. It is a privilege to be connected, in any way, with such men—a high privilege, and I feel it deeply as such."

Messrs. RATHBONE and DE WITT, others of the Trustees, enlarge their contributions to $5,500 and $3,000, respectively.

OCT.—Mr. GOULD draws for $250, to pay for a comet-seeker.

OCT. 22.—Mr. BACHE recommends the Trustees to invite GOULD to take permanent charge.

NOV. 2.—GOULD spends $5,000 for a worthless calculating-machine. None of the instruments he ordered in Europe yet received.

DEC. 31.—Mr. GOULD demands of the Trustees that they erect a new line of telegraph between Albany and New-York, in order to enable him to regulate the City Hall clock.

But to carry forward the story in this minute way would weary the patience of the reader, without subserving any beneficial end. Enough that it is all of the same kind. The gentlemen who were the founders and Trustees of the Observatory were untiring in their zeal and liberality, unflinching in their confidence in GOULD; and even when all his visionary promises had ended in clouds, and his schemes were entailing endless cost upon the Institution and the instruments lay idle, and the Observatory stood neglected, and no evidence existed of any progress, except the excessive and inordinate drafts of the Director, with a loyalty deserving of better reward, the Trustees continued to foot the bills without questioning them, and to approve his projects without understanding them. Perhaps, the whole history of science furnishes no more astonishing case of shrewd business men being beguiled and led along by empty scientific pretension and mere delusion for so long a time. In romance the history of the Laird of Monkbarns may afford a parallel.

But, if not skilled as a manager of Observatories, GOULD seems to understand the conduct of the Press, and the best plan of playing upon public credulity. Let us quote from the pamphlet:

"On the 25th of July, 1857, the Olcott comet was discovered by Dr. PETERS. The importance of this discovery was, at the time, appreciated and acknowledged by the late Director and Scientific Council. Mr. GOULD, in a letter dated Cambridge, Aug. 4, 1857, says: 'It is a very pretty idea to give the comet the esteemed name of the excellent Mr. Olcott.' This was before the late remarkable discovery by the Scientific Council, that the 'ridiculous procedure' of thus naming the comet was 'entirely unwarranted by astronomical usage.' The latter fact, although unknown to Dr. GOULD, had not, it seems, escaped the research of his greater astronomical associates. The late Director was so highly gratified that, in another letter to a gentleman in this City, dated Aug. 5, 1857, he gives some hints for bringing the comet into notice, through items that would be 'snapped up by the Press.' He says:

"'Little notices of a few lines, conveying, each of them, some information relative to the comet, will be snapped up and run round the Press, as items, when puffs would not; and it will be easy, with care, so to frame the language of a little paragraph, every two or three days, as to keep it before the public, without offending the taste of scientific men. For instance, one paragraph could state that it is approaching both the sun and the earth, and will be nearest the one on such a day, and the other on such another time. Later, another paragraph might say how bright it is likely to become. Later still, that it passes so many millions of miles from the earth, at its nearest approach. If it ever shows a tail. This is an interesting fact. And into every one of these paragraphs the name of the Dudley Observatory may be unostentatiously introduced, so as not to give the paragraphs the appearance of a puff, written for the purpose.'"

This is admirable. No writer of first-rate notices for a musical star, or renowned rope-dancer, about to appear, could have a better notion of his business

Equally brilliant appears to have been the performances of GOULD, in a diplomatic way. Dr. PETERS, by devotion and success as an astronomer, had won the confidence of the Trustees, and offended the Cambridge Dousterswivel. To get rid of him became the object of Dr. GOULD and his scientific partners, and every effort was bent to that end. They tried to bully the Trustees into dismissing him; and how could they dismiss the only live comet-catcher they had been able to obtain? They intimidated PETERS, but not so profoundly as to frighten him off. Then a renewed attempt was made upon the Trustees, and while it was pending, GOULD writes a most friendly and affectionate letter, thus:

CAMBRIDGE, 1857, Dec. 25.

MY DEAR SIR: Lieut. PARKE, of the N. W. Boundary Survey, has written on that they desire to increase their force next Spring, and asking for the nomination of an additional assistant, competent to make and compute the requisite astronomical observations. The compensation will range from $1 200 to $1,800 a year, not below the former limit certainly, and almost certain in the case of a thoroughly qualified person, to reach the latter figure very soon. Mr. HARRIS, who went out at $1,500, now receives $1,800.

It occurred to me that this might be more agreeable to you than the analogous position which you had in view upon the Mexican expedition. If so, you know that any services of mine are entirely at your disposal; and if you desire it, I am confident that the appointment may be secured.

With kind regards, yours truly,
B. A. GOULD, Jr.

Dr. PETERS.

Surely, it would be well to consider whether a politician so consummate should not be torn away from the Coast Survey, and employed in the State Department

Thus, at the close of 1857, the Observatory was unfinished, the instruments not set up, the scientific people quarreling, intriguing and drawing sight drafts upon the Trustees instead of upon the stars. There was a general impression that something ought to be done; and a large body of the "citizens of Albany" signed an address to the Trustees invoking action. As this document illustrates somewhat curiously the action of the same "citizens of Albany" at a recent meeting, and a pamphlet it put forth, we quote it as printed:

To the Trustees of the Dudley Observatory:

"The undersigned, citizens of Albany and donors to the Observatory, feeling, in common with all our citizens, a deep interest in the success of the Institution, beg leave to urge upon the Trustees the necessity of such action as shall insure its going into immediate activity. They understand that it has for some time past been in the possession of sufficient funds, and, for more than a year, of most of the instruments and apparatus necessary to commence a course of scientific observations. They feel that its future success, both in the acquisition of additional means and in the accomplishment of scientific results, must be essentially lessened, IF NOT COMPLETELY DESTROYED, BY ANY FURTHER DELAY. They would, therefore, beg leave to urge upon the consideration of the Trustees the propriety of appointing Dr. C. H. F. PETERS an observer, with instructions to take immediate steps to mount the instruments, and to proceed, with as little delay as possible, in commencing observations, and the accomplishment of such scientific results as its present means and facilities may enable it to do.

Signed: Blandina Dudley, Stephen Van Rensselaer, John F. Rathbone, John V. L. Pruyn, Howard Townsend, Thurlow Weed, William Cassidy, C. Comstock, Charles L. Austin, Maurice E. Viele, W. A. Young, J. P. Sandford, J. Taylor Cooper, Samuel Wilkeson, A. D. Lansing, Thos. Olcott, J. M. Lovett, James Kidd, G. Y. Lansing, Amasa J. Parker, Ira Harris, Anthony M. Strong, Theodore Townsend, Robert Townsend, Frederick Townsend, Amos Dean, S. B. Woolworth, Alfred B. Street, Philip Ten Eyck, John Tracy, Fred. W. Seward, J. V. P. Quackenbush, and others."

"It will be seen," say the Trustees, "that at this time Messrs. S. VAN RENSSELAER, JOHN V. L. PRUYN, HOWARD TOWNSEND, JOHN T. COOPER and their associates, recognized not only the power but the duty of the Trustees to take measures, by the appointment of a competent astronomer," to supersede the slow progress of the scientific body. The Trustees accordingly appointed Dr. PETERS. Recent events, so fresh in the minds of our readers as not to require repetition, are the results of this proper energetic action, prompted by the very men who now indorse the scientific slow-coaches and denounce, by resolution and pamphlet, the Board of Trustees.

The charge of gratuitous insolence on the part of GOULD toward the Trustees is also sustained by abundant testimony. The charge of reckless extravagance, if not something worse, is sustained by testimony as abundant. Thus, in regard to determining the longitude of the Observatory, the pamphlet of the Scientific Council asserts that the Trustees having appropriated $600 to the work, it cost $928 94, the difference being paid out of GOULD'S pocket. On referring the subject to Mr. W. C. BOND, the eminent astronomer of the Cambridge Observatory, he writes:

"I can see no reason for estimating the cost beyond two hundred dollars; and if, as I understand is the case, at the Dudley Observatory, the transit instrument is in position, and the Clock properly arranged, and the electric connection made with the main lines, I think it should not cost so much. * *

In determining the difference of longitude between Quebec and Cambridge, last year, the charges at this end of the line were fifty-one dollars; and I do not know any circumstance that should have occasioned the expense to have been greater at Quebec, as our amount included the amount paid to operators at Cambridge, Boston, and Portland.

In connecting Cambridge with Fredericton, New-Brunswick, the charges at this end of the line were, I think, something less than fifty dollars; what the expenditures were at Fredericton I have not learned."

And so nearly all the estimates and payments of GOULD appear by the light of disinterested scientific investigation. As to the standing of GOULD among his fellow astronomers, his patrons, in their pamphlet defence, say:

"Recurring to the idea of the national character of the Dudley Observatory, Mr. OLCOTT declares that the personal relations of Dr. GOULD with MITCHELL, with MAURY, with the BONDS, and with BRUNNOW, are such as to preclude the hope of concert and cooperation with them. How utterly this is unwarranted by the facts, is shown by the pages of the Astronomical Journal, edited by Dr. GOULD, and which contain constant contributions from the BONDS, MAURY and BRUNNOW! The number just passing through the press contains a leading article from the last named astronomer."

The Trustees, reiterating their statement, add that the Scientific Council are guilty of disingenuousness because men may write for an Astronomical journal, notwithstanding a person they dislike or despise is in editorial charge of it; and because, in reference to the eminent astronomer last named, they had the following letter, a copy of which had been obtained by the Trustees, before their eyes:

ANN ARBOR, July 1, 1858.

DEAR GOULD: Yesterday I received some New-York TIMES', from which I learnt the present state of affairs at the Dudley Observatory, and Sunday came your note, together with the papers, in which Mr. OLCOTT'S remarks about you are published. You will recollect that I frankly confessed to you that I did not approve at all of the manner in which Dr. PETERS had been treated by you and your friends, and I expressed myself so continually in my correspondence with PETERS. Very likely the Trustees heard, through him, of the side I have taken on this question, and mistook my strong disapproval of your course in this affair, as a rupture of all intercourse between us; as it exists between you and BOND and MAURY. This, I suppose, is the origin of the remarks to which you refer.

I feel sorry for you individually, but I must say that you brought on all this difficulty by your own imprudence, and by your treatment of Dr. PETERS; and I must entirely condemn your course in this affair.

I also regret that this has chilled the friendly feelings I had towards you since our first acquaintance.

Yours, BRUNNOW.

We regret that other demands for space forbid our following the conclusive case of the Trustees to the end. It is certainly a thorough vindication of our early estimate of the business, and we doubt not it will open the eyes of Mrs. DUDLEY, and the other foolish "citizens of Albany" who lent themselves to the mistaken politics of the savans. We trust, after recording the legal ejection of the Council from the building, as we shall certainly have occasion to do before many weeks have elapsed, there will be no call for further discussion.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

LOON POND, Sunday, July 18, 1858.

DEAR R——: The log-hut in which we stayed last night consisted of two rooms, one of which answered for parlor, sitting-room, dining-room, pantry, kitchen, and, last of all, bedroom, for in two corners of it were beds with sheets dropped over them, in one of which slept the man and his wife, and in the other two females belonging to the family; the other room was a loft with loose boards thrown across the logs for a floor. This was filled up with beds placed alongside of each other. Into these we, with our guides and two others, making eight in all, crept and slept as we best could. The owner of this clearing was really a fine-looking man, and evidently designed for a different sphere. He had a small garden, in which the vegetables looked well, with the exception of cabbages. They appeared to have been just set out. I spoke of this to him, and asked if they would have time to head. "Not much," he said, "but I can't raise cabbages, the flea destroys them all." "Why that is very easily prevented," I replied. "Build a close board fence where you raise the young plants so as to keep them in shadow all day long, or, if that is too much trouble, get some shingles or slabs of wood and stick over them—the flea never crosses the sun-line." He seemed to think it very strange that a sportsman should teach a backwoodsman how to raise vegetables—especially propose so simple a remedy as that. I have no doubt it furnished a topic of conversation for the family for some time.

In the two clearings I have mentioned, I saw no books, not the sign of a paper, however old. The people take no interest in what is going on in the moving world around them—never asking any questions whatever respecting it. They are so completely away from the current of events that they do not try to keep up the connection, and I do not believe some of them have yet heard of our war with Mexico.

Taking in a new supply of butter here, we dropped down to Big Tupper's Lake. Hearing that a couple of gentlemen were encamped here, we made them a morning call. They had a fine bark shanty enclosed on three sides, with a fire in front. It looked nice and comfortable, and quite homelike to me in the woods; for I had been accustomed to them. "There," said I to my companions, "that's the way to camp out." For the prairie and desert, a tent is all well enough, but it is out of place in the woods, and bidding our fellow-sportsmen adieu, we pulled leisurely up the Lake. It was a warm day, and we were glad to take the shadows of the islands when we could. This is a handsome Lake, and like the Saranac, filled with islands covered with heavy forest trees. There is, however, no back-ground of distant mountains as in Long and Raquette Lakes. Mountains of moderate height form a frame-work for the Lake, and your vision is bounded by the immediate shores.

As we were passing one island the guide said that on that island, some hunters, two or three years ago, drove a deer. Taking the dogs over, they put them on the track again and drove him to the water's edge. But the deer, when he reached the shore, found he was on the brink of a precipice over thirty feet high. He was pressed so close by the hounds that he could not turn back, and cleaving the air with one wild bound he fell and disappeared in the water below; rising to the surface again, he struck boldly out for the opposite shore. But a boat that was on the watch started in pursuit, and overtaking him, through admiration of his bold and gallant leap, captured him alive. Soon after, however, he managed to escape, and a year after was killed.

Towards noon we came in sight of Buttermilk Falls, where the water, issuing out of the green forest, shoots a mass of feathery foam into the placid lake below. Before reaching them we stopped at a spring famous in this whole region. It is several feet in diameter, and the bottom dark with the debris of leaves that have fallen into it except where the water boils up; here it is sand, which is white as snow, and rolling over and over by the force of the jet, appears like some light, foamy substance. The water is pure, cold, and sweet as ever passed human lips. I wanted to take that spring with me. It is only a few rods around these falls to Bog River, up which our course lay. While the guides were transporting the boats and baggage across, I rigged my line to take some trout for dinner. But we found here the same difficulty that we did in coming down the Raquette. The heavy rains had so swollen and discolored the streams that in places where ordinarily, in a few minutes, one could catch all the trout he could carry, we were unable to take one. This, together with our ill luck after the deer, had now reduced us to low rations. This state of affairs required some attention, and we concluded that to live on pork in such a region of game as this, was disreputable, at least. I knew there were trout in abundance, but I could not raise one, either at the foot of the Falls or in the rapids above. I came across, however, in a little open space, as I was leaving the rapids, a very singular spectacle. It was the head of a young buck, with the body, bones and all gone, though it evidently had lain there but a short time, as some of the tissues still clung to the jaw bones. The fleshless jaws were stretched wide apart as if the animal had died in agony—probably bleating. On one of its horns was a large weasel completely impaled, the horn having passed clean through him. The weasel was still undecomposed, showing that he had been there but a short time. How came that weasel upon that horn was a problem I could not solve. Had the buck been wounded and lain down here to die, and this little animal, with that boldness which characterizes it, attempted to suck his blood before life was extinct, when the suffering creature, in a last death-struggle, by chance drove his horn through his enemy? This seemed inconsistent and almost impossible, but how came those two animals in that strange position. That skeleton head, with the jaws stretched wide apart, and a weasel impaled on one horn, interested me exceedingly, from the mystery that attached to it Now and then the woods exhibit phenomena that even the old, experienced hunter cannot explain. Bog River, on which we had now embarked, we designed to mount to its source. It is a narrow stream, possessing no beauty, and awakens anything but pleasant feelings as it winds its sluggish way through the silent forest. But I had long known that it was famous for game, and that at its sources dwelt the moose. It was not in the hope of killing many deer that I determined to visit it, but to see them in broad day feeding on the wild meadows like calves in the fields, and visit the home of the Moose.

Boats ascend three miles of this river on their way to Little Tupper's Lake, a favorite resort of sportsmen Beyond this point neither of our guides had ever been, and they as well as myself had to depend on the knowledge we had derived from others. The former knew one thing well, however, and CHARLIE did nothing but whine about it—that there were nine carrying places on the route, and these not beaten paths, over comparatively even ground, but over rocks and swamps and steep acclivities. The first, a half a mile in length, was not very difficult, but in passing over it I noticed the skill these men acquire in carrying their boats upon their heads. In crossing a deep hollow, they came to a miry spot. Over this, on a stick not more than four inches in diameter, they stepped with far more steadiness and ease than we did. After launching our boats and rowing about four miles, we came to the "Winding Falls," so called from their shape—the water swinging itself down the precipice in a peculiarly graceful manner. This was a short but rough carrying-place.

Now thumping against the rocks as we attempted to force our way over rapids and now sinking our boats under a huge pine-tree that spanned the stream, almost touching the surface, we kept on our toilsome way until the last carrying-place was reached that we were to pass before we arrived at a chain of ponds where we were to camp for the night. We had got the impression that this was a short and easy one, but it proved to be the most desperate piece of ground over which I had ever seen a boat carried. The indistinct trail lay along the face of a steep mountain that overhung a wild, loud torrent below. The footing was so uncertain and the way so broken, that my heart smote me for having brought our guides into such an inhospitable region. When we again shoved our boats from shore all were thoroughly used up, for taking compassion on the guides, our party had carried nearly all the baggage, oars, benches, &c., each taking two loads across.

Just as the sun was sinking behind the forest we heard the loud, clear cry of the great Northern diver just ahead, and knew at once that we were near the three ponds, on one of which we must find a camping place for the night.

Yours truly, H.

The Democratic State Convention—Character of the Leaders—The Discussions and Nominations—Boston Congressional Districts.

Correspondence of the New-York Times:

BOSTON, Friday, Sept. 3, 1858.

The Democratic State Convention met at Worcester yesterday, the 2d, and there was a very lively time in that old Anti-Slavery town. The Beach-and-Butler controversy had suddenly lighted up the Democratic stubble, which burned away most brilliantly, much to the astonishment of the public, who had believed Democracy dead, whereas it was only roasting. Fired by the prospect of a change in the management of the Custom-house, in consequence of AUSTIN'S crazy Congressional aspirations, the patriots poured forth, from Barnstable to Berkshire, resolved to have a claim in the new distribution of the spoils that is to take place whenever there shall be a new Collector appointed. There was a vast deal of intrigue going on the previous evening, the principal object being the elevation of JIM WHITNEY, the smooth-tongued and smooth-faced Superintendent of the Springfield Armory, to the office of President of the Convention. WHITNEY, who is now a professional Union-saver, was in 1849-'53 a professional Abolitionist, and is a fair sample of our office trading Democracy—men who are ever ready to go with Mr. GARRISON on Monday, and to help lynch him on Tuesday, with the firm resolve to bury his remains with honor on Wednesday. He was one of the leaders in that arrangement by which BOUTWELL was made Governor of Massachusetts, and Mr. SUMNER a Senator. He voted for Mr. SUMNER. For his part in the "truck-and-dicker" arrangement of 1851, Gov. BOUTWELL made him Sheriff of Franklin County. When he had got all that he could get from the coalition,—Representative, Sheriff, and Delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1853,—he went in for Slavery when CUSHING and PIERCE resolved to go for it; and when the Anti-Nebraska resolves were before our State House of Representatives, at the session of 1854, he opposed them, and supported the Slavery-extension project, being the only man who did so, and though he had been chosen to the Legislature by Free-Soil votes. He was rewarded with the Superintendency of the Springfield Armory, a place which BOUTWELL had expected, but as he was not so actively servile as WHITNEY, the latter got ahead of him, and there was nothing left for BOUTWELL but to turn Republican in despair, he having failed in his attempts on three or four fat offices. I mention these facts in WHITNEY'S career in order to show of what "national" stuff our "national" Democracy is composed.

The Convention met at 11 o'clock, and a dispute about the New-Bedford two-tailed delegation was immediately commenced. One of the persons who spoke was concerned in the Shadrach rescue, that famous breach of the Fugitive Slave Law which occurred here in 1850, and which excited so royal a rage in Mr. WEBSTER'S mind. It was the first violation of that famous law that took place, and the person referred to is understood to have sheltered the fugitive immediately after he was torn from the custody of the officers, in open Court. Another speaker was a notorious office-beggar in coalition times; and a third was a coalition office-holder, and a fourth was both beggar and holder of office in BOUTWELL'S day. When the vote for President was taken WHITNEY received 897 votes, being all that were cast but six; and among those who conducted him to the Chair was the second officer of the State Government under the Coalition Administration. If the Union is safe under such circumstances, it may considered as beyond the reach of danger from any quarter. A Democrat will, ere long, and at this rate, be permitted to subscribe for the Liberator, without forfeiting his nationality. When a director of the underground railroad can belong to the Democratic Party, and hold office in the Custom-house, and lead off in the discussions of a Democratic Convention, the golden age of toleration may be claimed to exist.

The Convention went on to complete its organization pretty much after the fashion it had commenced. When the vote for Governor was taken it was decided as follows: Whole number of votes, 1,054; necessary to a choice, 528. E. D. BEACH had 634; B. F. BUTLER had 406; R CHOATE had 11; E. C. BAILEY had 1. So Mr. BEACH was put up for a fourth time, being the only man who has been so honored since old MORTON retired from our Gubernatorial course. BANCROFT, DAVIS, CUSHING, BOUTWELL and BISHOP never were so far honored as to receive a fourth nomination. Gen. BUTLER then came forward and made a speech, in which he avowed his desire that Mr. BEACH'S nomination should be made unanimous; which wish of his was instantly complied with, and made him feel as happy as a trout in a lime basket. The other nominations are as follows: Mr. THOMPSON, of Charlestown, for Lieutenant-Governor, who was a coalition Senator; Mr. PIERCE, for Treasurer, an excellent Boston merchant, and a thorough opponent of the Lecompton swindle; Mr. COLE, Secretary of State, a Berkshire man, said to be a good citizen; Mr. MEAD, of Nantucket, for Auditor, of whom I know little, and, therefore, will say nothing; and for Attorney-General, Mr. WILKINSON, of Dedham, who, for illiberality and bigotry, might have held a brief in company with the murderers of ALGERNON SYDNEY.

I am disposed to make large allowance for political cant, but I must say that the resolves passed by, and the speeches made at this Democratic Convention, are inexpressibly disgusting. They were enough to turn stomachs that have defied Buzzard's Bay and the Straits of Dover. The resolves were reported by the violator of the Fugitive Slave Law, already mentioned. Mr. HALLETT, who used to be one of the rankest Abolitionists in Massachusetts, canted with an eighty-Democrat power, but he could not get quite up to WHITNEY. Mr. BEACH was the only man who had any modesty in speaking.

There was a "demonstration" last night at Charlestown, which resembled Paradise Lost, in the respect that it proved nothing; a few dozen Democrats visiting Mr. THOMPSON, one of the nominees, who looked as prettily as when he accepted the Free-Soil nomination for the Senate nine years ago.

Our State campaign may now be considered as fairly opened, and the Custom-house party has triumphed in the nominations. It is reported that they would have bolted had BUTLER been nominated; and this report probably turned the scale in BEACH'S favor. AUSTIN will now be nominated in No. 3; but we shall give him such a licking as will make him fancy that he is in a far higher (and lower) place—to wit, Queer-street, No. 1,000.

I think I may venture to say that matters are taking a good turn for the Opposition in the two Boston Congressional districts. It is now currently said that Mr. BURLINGAME will be nominated in No. 5, and under circumstances that will render his election a certainty; and that the entire Opposition will be united in support of a distinguished gentleman in No. 4—one universally esteemed—who will have to make great sacrifices to enter public life, which he has hitherto shunned. It is altogether probable that these rumors are true, and that the Democratic cloud that was rising over our districts will be dispersed before it shall have got up to the deluge point. Yet, with a good candidate in No. 5, the Democrats might accomplish something worthy of their ancient fame, even if they should fall short of victory.

Hints towards Railroad Reform.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Friday, Aug. 27, 1858.

An important error was made by your printer in my article of the 16th inst., in the substitution of "a hundred" for a thousand millions of dollars as the cost of the Railroads in the United States, and of "seven millions" for seventy millions, as the annual interest on that cost. While the magnitude of the sum involved is not so important an element in the question at issue as that of morals, still when correctly understood and appreciated, it is not a trifling matter.

Since my last communication I have seen data which authorize much larger estimates than those then given, viz: Twelve to fifteen hundred millions of dollars as the amount of investment, and a hundred millions of dollars as the annual interest. More than a hundred millions have been invested in your own State, and nearly or quite an equal amount in this.

Is not the saving of those amounts worthy the consideration solicited to the subject? And has not the moral aspect of the question a still stronger claim upon the time and sympathies of the public?

As intimated in my last, the accomplishment of this reform will be a great work, and its authors will merit—and sooner or later receive—a nation's gratitude.

But though great—it is simple—and perfectly practicable. The first step is to expose the existing evils. Let the suffering stockholders and the public once see how their money has been stolen and squandered, and the reform will be well commenced. Let them be constrained to give their personal attention to the management of the Corporations in which they are severally interested, and the remedy is certain.

If a sufficient number of votes cannot be secured to enforce a change in the management, the aid of an indignant public sentiment will effect it.

I notice the communication of your correspondent, "Ex-Officer," in the TIMES of yesterday; and, while I approve of most of his suggestions, I fancy he aims too high. The first step necessary is honesty in your officers and managers. I do not mean simply to secure men who will not do wrong when they see a probability of detection; but you must have those who will not do wrong from a high regard to principle. You do not want the men distinguished for their "smartness" and "keenness," but those of good, substantial, solid sense—especially such as have no opposing interests to annoy them, and who are not so completely engrossed in private or in other public engagements as to disqualify them from acting as your agents

A careful examination would probably show that most of the evil results to our railroad investments may be traced to some counteracting influences upon managers and officers.

Some are managers in other and connecting roads; others are stockholders in banks, mills, manufactories, or other enterprises, which have interests to be served in some way detrimental to your interests as a stockholder.

To hold the position of manager of a railroad company under such circumstances is not honest—in the party; and while there are so many equally competent men, without such disqualifications, it is altogether unnecessary; and it is both unwise and unsafe for stockholders any longer to permit it.

If stockholders will think and act upon these suggestions they may easily have a REFORM.

POLITICAL INTELLIGENCE.

Michigan.

The Democratic State Convention of Michigan met at Detroit on the 2d inst.—the Hon. ROBERT MCCLELLAND presiding. The Administration was overwhelmingly defeated. The Hon. CHARLES E. STUART received the nomination for Governor by a decided majority, on the third ballot, over WM M FENTON. The Detroit Advertiser says:

"The great battle for supremacy in Michigan came off in this city yesterday, between the National Administration army of office-holders on the one side, and the Douglas Democracy on the other. The result has been a most disgraceful and ignominious defeat of the Administration, and a terrible rebuke to BUCHANAN and CASS. Henceforth they must be ranked amongst the things that were. The Administration is nowhere in Michigan. The whole party, with the exception of a few insignificant Postmasters, was in the Convention, and was shamefully beaten on an issue it had sent orders from Washington to be raised. That issue was the question of CHARLES E. STUART'S nomination—a man more cordially hated by the Administration than the most inveterate Republican in the Union."

The Contest in Illinois.

The great debate between LINCOLN and DOUGLAS, which took place at Freeport on the 27th ult., drew together a concourse of 15,000 people. Both the combatants were sharp and eager for the contest. Mr. LINCOLN had the first privilege of speech, and Mr. DOUGLAS replied. LINCOLN'S speech was full of keen hits:

"When the whole matter turns out as it does, and when we consider who Judge DOUGLAS is—that he is a distinguished Senator of the United States—that he has served nearly twelve years as such—that his character is not at at all limited as an ordinary Senator of the United States, but that his name has become of world-wide renown—it is most extraordinary that he should so far forget all the suggestions of justice to an adversary, or of prudence to himself, as to venture upon the assertion of that which the slightest investigation would have shown him to be wholly false. [Cheers.] I can only account for his having done so upon the supposition that that evil genius which has attended him through his life, giving to him an apparent astonishing prosperity, such as to lead very many good men to doubt their being any advantage in virtue over vice. [Cheers and laughter.] I say I can only account for it on the supposition that that evil genius has at last made up its mind to forsake him. [Cheers and laughter.]

And I may add that another extraordinary feature of the Judge's conduct in this canvass—made more extraordinary by this incident—is that he is in the habit, in almost all the speeches he makes, of charging falsehood upon his adversaries—myself and others. I now ask whether he is able to find in anything that Judge TRUMBULL, for instance, has said, or in anything that I have said, a justification at all compared with what we have, in this instance, for that sort of vulgarity. [Cries of 'Good, good, good.']

* * * Cannot the Judge be satisfied? If he fears, in the unfortunate case of my election, [Laughter] that my going to Washington will enable me to advocate sentiments contrary to those which I expressed when you voted for and elected me, I assure him that his fears are wholly needless and groundless. Is the Judge really afraid of any such thing? [Laughter.] I'll tell you what he is afraid of. He is afraid we'll all pull together. [Applause, and cries of 'We will, we will.'] This is what alarms him more than anything else." [Laughter.]

Judge TRUMBULL spoke at Alton on the 26th ult., and gave a bit of his personal history:

"It is true that I once resided in Georgia; but it is not true that I was at any time a Nullifier, or that I disposed of any clocks, for I never owned one in the State; nor is it true that I was bred a Federalist. It so happens that my father was a Jeffersonian and a Jackson Democrat. However, I claim no credit for this, nor do I assume that it makes me better or worse than if my ancestors, out of respect to the traitor ARNOLD, had given part of his name to me. I recognize every man in this free country as the architect of his own reputation and fortune, and would have regarded it as no reproach to have been a clock-peddler, or to have followed any other honest calling; and although I honor and respect the memory of my ancestors and believe they will compare favorably with any man's, I claim no credit on their account. Whatever I am and have, I owe to the sweat of my own brow, the partiality of my fellow-citizens, and the blessing of a kind Providence; and God forbid I should ever reproach any man on account of the place of his birth, or his parentage. I am too much of a Democrat for that. The charge that I ever advocated repudiation, and the statement that Judge DOUGLAS went into the House of Representatives and replied to me, is simply untrue; as is also the statement made in another portion of his speech, of my having made a bargain with Mr. LINCOLN at any time, or in any manner, in regard to the United States Senatorship. These attacks of Mr. DOUGLAS have nothing to do with the questions at issue before the country. It is a matter of no consequence where I was born, who my ancestors were, or where I have lived; and such matters can only be dragged into the canvass to distract attention from the real issue."

The Campaign in Ohio.

The Hon. THOMAS CORWIN made a speech at Columbus on the 31st ult. He discussed, among other subjects, the Tariff question, contending that a tariff was unfavorable to slave labor, and would build up free labor at the North. The fight began on the Tariff question. Thirty years ago was begun what was ended in the English swindle. He had seen the birth of this fellow, and he hoped to be in at the death. It had been predicted, and the Democracy were fairly warned in 1846: "Just so sure as you repeal the tariff of '42 you will bring about a commercial revulsion." They repealed the tariff. Every year our imports increased, while our exports remained nearly the same. Our imports are of fancy articles, which may cost immense sums. You may hang thousands of dollars around the neck of one of our ladies, but you can't stuff more than a pound of bread a day into the—pockets of the Liverpool ladies however low their tariff may be.

In the course of his speech he said: He had been driven into the Republican ranks as a matter of conscience. He believed in every article of their creed.

The Slave Ship and Slave Cargo at Charleston.

From the Charleston Mercury, Sept. 1.

The official correspondence will be of interest to our readers, as touching the police regulations of the law of 1835, for the protection of the State against the introduction of free negroes within her limits. The question broached is, whether the law of 1835, enslaving them under certain penalties, is applicable to the present case of the cargo of the Echo, brought in and landed at Castle Pinckney, in accordance with the United States law of 1819. No one supposes, for a moment, that the presence of these Africans will do harm. On the contrary, it is universally thought that it would be beneficial to all classes, black and white, to see and judge for themselves of the natural condition and calibre of these poor wretches fresh from their native land. But it has been suggested that their introduction here now is contrary to the State law, and might, under Abolitionists, be made a ground, by proscription and example, for annoying us hereafter—as, for instance, in affording shelter for runaways, and places of security for mischievous persons of color brought and retained in the United States forts. With this view, and as a matter of right, looking to future consequences, the subject has been opened.

It was undoubtedly the purpose of the State of South Carolina, in passing the act of 1835, to assert and exercise jurisdiction over all importations whatsoever of persons of color, with a view to the peace and security of her people, and in accordance with her own notions on the subject. Nor would the mere fact of the introduction being made in a vessel of the United States Government alter her right or its exercise. The State law of 1835, however, was made with a full knowledge and in the face of the United States law of 1819. We take it, it was made in conference, and not as an act of nullification. The specified object of the United States Government, in regard to cargoes of captured slavers, is harmonious with the object of the State in her police law. The negroes are soon to be removed. It, therefore, seems not a case where the Sheriff would be justified in seizing the negroes, and we think he has acted wisely in permitting the matter to drop. Should the Abolitionists seek to use the law of 1819 against us, or molest us by indirection, our proper course cannot be doubtful. That would be a clear case within the letter and spirit of the law of 1835.

Lieutenant BRADFORD, yesterday, received a telegraphic dispatch from the Hon. ISAAC TOUCEY, Secretary of the Navy, ordering him to deliver everything into the hands of the United States Marshal, and to report himself, with his command, at Boston, forthwith. Lieutenant BRADFORD took immediate steps to obey the order, and unless detained by subpœna to appear before the United States Commissioner's Court, of which we are not advised, it was his intention to leave the city last night by the Northeastern Railroad.

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN THE SHERIFF OF CHARLESTON DISTRICT AND THE UNITED STATES MARSHAL.

It appears that on Sunday morning last a number of gentlemen called upon Colonel CAREW, the Sheriff of the District, and laid before him formal information of the fact that a large number of free persons of co or had been brought into the harbor of Charleston contrary to the act of Assembly passed in November, 1835. The facts of the capture of the slaver Echo, and of her being brought into the port for adjudication, and such order as might be taken upon the subject by the General Government, has already been placed before our readers, and it is quite unnecessary to recapitulate them.

Acting upon this information, the Sheriff addressed the following notes to Hon. I. W. HAYNE, Attorney-General of the State, and Messrs. WHALEY and LORD, his legal advisers:

CHARLESTON, August 30, 1858.

It has been suggested to me that a cargo of free negroes is lying within the jurisdiction of the State, and that the act of 1856 does not apply—consequently that there may be a conflict of the laws of South Carolina, and those of the United States, by which they are retained. As the law officer of the State, I should request an opinion from you as to the paramount jurisdiction JOHN E. CAREW, S. C. D.

Hon. ISAAC W. HAYNE.

CHARLESTON, August 29, 1858.

The inclosed affidavit having been brought before, and notice given me that I would be expected to comply with the provisions of the law, under the act of 1835, I beg to call the same to your attention, and request, as the legal advisers of the Sheriff, your opinion as to the course of action proper under the circumstances. JOHN E. CAREW, S. C. D.

Messrs. WHALEY and LORD.

OPINION OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

OFFICE ATTORNEY-GENERAL, Monday, Aug. 30, 1858.

Your note of Sunday, the 29th inst., was brought to me at home, and I could only send you a verbal message, to the effect that the case stated by you did not call for any action on your part as Sheriff. I now send you my opinion, in behalf of the Attorney-General, at present absent from the City. You say:

It has been suggested to me that a cargo of free negroes is lying within the jurisdiction of this State, and that the act of 1856 does not apply; consequently that there may be a conflict of the laws of South Carolina and those of the United States, by which they are retained. As the law officer of the State, I should request an opinion from you as to the paramount jurisdiction.

The facts, as represented to me, are that some officers of the United States Navy brought into this port a vessel, captured by them as a slaver, having on board some 300 Africans; that after remaining a day at the Quarantine grounds, the Africans were delivered into the custody of the United States Marshal, and have by him been placed in Castle Pinckney.

The only law of South Carolina which I think bears upon the case is the A. A. 1835, which is still of force, although modified in certain cases (of which the present is not one) by the act of 1856.

By the first section of this act (7 S. L., 470) it is enacted, "That it shall not be lawful for any negro or person of color to migrate into this State, or be brought or introduced into its limits, under any pretext whatever, by land or by water," and goes on to declare what shall be done in case of any such migration or introduction contrary to this act.

I am clearly of opinion that you are not authorized, as Sheriff, to proceed under the provisions of this act in the present case

First—Because I think that the present case does not come within the purview and scope of the act of Assembly of 1835. These negroes have been seized and brought into this port by officers of the United States, in literal compliance with the requisitions and directions of certain acts of Congress, which acts, made in pursuance of the constitutional powers of Congress over the subject matter, are part of the law of South Carolina, and I cannot think that the act of the Legislature was intended to embrace this case. The A. A. of 1835 provides certain modes of procedure, and declares certain penalties in the case of free negroes unlawfully brought into the limits of the State, and its provisions do not apply to the case of such persons lawfully brought within the limits of the State.

Secondly. I am of opinion that the case which has arisen does not come within even the letter of the A. A. of 1855; for these Africans, even if they are to be regarded as "free negroes," mentioned in the act, (which may admit of question,) have not migrated into this State, or been brought or introduced into its limits, so as to be subject to the operation of the act.

These Africans are now in Castle Pinckney, a fort ceded to the United States, and exclusively within the jurisdiction of the United States, and therefore not "within the limits" of the State; and previous to their being placed there they were in a vessel under the jurisdiction of the United States.

By the ninth section of the A. A. of 1835, it is decreed that its provisions shall not extend to free negroes employed as stewards, &c., in any vessel of the United States Navy, nor do I think that its provisions would apply to the case of other free negroes on board of United States vessels.

It has been suggested to me that the first section of the A. A. of 1856 does not apply to these negroes as being brought into this port by "a cause which makes such entry involuntary," and therefore exempts them from the operation of the A. A. of 1835; but I am not disposed to rest my advice to you on this construction of the act of 1856, but rather where I have before placed it, on the view that the act of 1835 does not apply to this case, either in spirit or letter.

It may be added, in passing, in confirmation of the view which I have taken of the act of 1835, that, to hold that it applied to this case, and that the Sheriff was bound to take possession of these negroes, would be to defeat the very object of the act by introducing these persons, who are now in the custody of the United States officers, and therefore kept from among us, to a certain extent in the midst of us—the very evil intended to be prevented.

I might further suggest to you that, as the object of the A. A. of 1835 was to prevent the introduction of this class of persons among us, and its provisions are to secure their leaving the State, even if the act of 1835 were applicable to the case, you might, nevertheless, be satisfied with procuring this result, without a literal compliance with the requisitions of the act; but with my decided opinions as to the inapplicability of the act to the present case, it would be needless to advise you on this point.

The foregoing has necessarily been very hurriedly written, and I have had to content myself with giving you my conclusions, without stating fully the reasons upon which they are based.

CH. RICHARDSON MILES,
For I. W. HAYNE, Attorney-General.

To JOHN E. CAREW, Esq., Sheriff of Charleston District.

Messrs. WHALEY & LORD, the legal advisers of the Sheriff of Charleston, furnished to that officer an opinion taking ground opposite to that of the Attorney-General. They held it to be the right and duty of the Sheriff to seize the negroes, under the State act of 1835, of which the following is the essential provision:

"It shall not be lawful for any free negro or person of color to migrate into this State, or be brought or introduced into its limits, under any pretext whatever, by land or water. And in case any free negro or person of color (not being a seaman on board any vessel arriving in this State) shall migrate into, or be introduced into this State, contrary to this act, it shall and may be lawful for any white person to seize and convey him or her before any magistrate of the district or parish where he or she may be taken; and it shall be the duty of the Sheriff or any Constable in the parish or district in which said entry shall be made, and of the City Marshals in the City of Charleston, should the entry be made in Charleston, upon information of the migration or introduction of any such free negro or person of color, to arrest and bring before some magistrate of the district or parish where the free negro or person of color shall be taken, which magistrate is, by this act, empowered to commit to prison, or, at his discretion, to hold to bail such free negro or person of color, and to summon three freeholders and form a court for the trial of persons of color, and examine such free negro or person of color within six days after his or her arrest, and on conviction to order him or her to leave the State, and to commit such free negro or person of color so convicted to close prison until such time as he or she can leave the State, or to release him or her on sufficient bail for any time not exceeding fifteen days, at the discretion of the magistrate."

In case of failure to leave the State within the time limited, they are directed to be sold:

"In view of these conflicting opinions, and the absolute terms of the first section of the act of 1835, which appeared to the Sheriff to require action on his part, and to satisfy all parties, he deemed it proper to place the matter before the United States Marshal of the district, and demand the surrender of the negroes so in his possession to the jurisdiction of the State of South Carolina. The responsibility of any violation of the act of 1835, and a refusal to comply with its terms, by this course was thrown upon the general Government. To this end he addressed a note to the Marshal, to which the following is a reply:

STEAMER GENERAL CLINCH,
CHARLESTON, S. C., Aug. 30, 1858.

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of yours of this date, covering the opinion of your legal adviser, Mr. B. J. WHALEY. I have transmitted this opinion to the United States District-Attorney, Mr. CONNER, and shall be guided by his instructions in the matter.

D. H. HAMILTON,
U. S. Marshal, So. Ca. District.

JOHN E. CAREW, Esq.,
Sheriff of Charleston District, Charleston, S. C.

Soon after he received the following note from Jas. CONNER, Esq., U. S. District Attorney:

OFFICE OF U. S. DISTRICT ATTORNEY,
CARLESTON, Aug. 30, 1858.

Your letter of this date together with the opinion of Mr. B. J. WHALEY, have been handed me by the United States Marshal, to whom they were addressed. I have the misfortune to differ entirely from Mr. WHALEY in the construction of the Act of Assembly of 1855, but as the view I take of this act is sustained by the Attorney-General of the State, to whom, "as the law officer of the State," this subject was submitted by you last evening, it is needless for me to do more than refer you to his opinion (a copy of which I enclose,) deciding that you have no right seize those negroes. Fortified in my construction of the act by the opinion of the highest law officer of the State, I shall instruct the Marshal not to deliver these negroes, but to retain them in his own custody.

JAMES CONNER,
U. S. Attorney General South Carolina.

To JOHN E. CAREW, Sheriff of Charleston District.

While these proceedings were in progress, information was brought to the Sheriff that the negroes were removed from Castle Pickney to Fort Sumter, a few miles further from the city. We learn that in view of their not being in way the of the evils contemplated by the law of this State, which, in the opinion of the Sheriff, rendered it his duty to proceed against them, and being unwilling, under all the circumstances, to force a conflict of jurisdiction between the State and Federal Governments, unnecessary to the objects contemplated by the act, he determined to forego further measures to carry the law into effect in this case.

The Slaver Echo and her Cargo at Charleston.

The Charleston Mercury, of Sept. 1, contains the opinion of the State Attorney-General and the United States District Attorney, both declaring that the slaver Echo and her cargo of negroes, were not within State jurisdiction, but are under the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal authorities. The Mercury gives the following particulars in regard to the slaver:

The brig Putnam (Echo) was yesterday towed to the wharves at the new Custom-House, where she will probably lie for the present. The gentlemanly Superintendent, Col. E. B. WHITE, will undoubtedly gratify the reasonable wishes of parties who may desire to observe the interior arrangements of a slaver.

Yesterday at noon, the steamer General Clinch took a large party to Fort Sumter, consisting of the Hon. A. G. Magrath, United States District Judge; James Conner, Esq., United States District Attorney; Dr. D. H. Hamilton, United States Marshal; the Rev. Dr. John Bachman; the Rev. W. B. Yates; Mr. J. Fraser Matthews, cotton planter; Mr. Charles Lowndes, rice planter; Mr. Daniel Heyward, planter; Colonel George P. Elliott, of Beaufort; Mr. Henry Gourdin, merchant; Mr. Wm. M. Martin, banker; Mr. W. C. Courtney, merchant; Mr. W. Bull Pringle, planter; Colonel R. W. Seymour; H. L. Pinckney, Jr.; H. E. Young, Esq.; Dr. J. D. Burns; Dr. T. L. Ogier; Mr. St Julian Mazyck, merchant; Mr. M. P. Mathesen, banker; Chas. H. Axson, Esq.; Chas. Pinckney, Esq; the Marshal's posse and many other gentlemen. These gentlemen availed themselves of the kindness of Dr. Hamilton, who had chartered the steamer for the purpose of conveying stores to the fort. These stores consisted of a bale of blankets, 360 in number, a bale of cotton cloth, a hogshead of bacon, and four casks of rice. This day the Marshal has promised the poor creatures some pipes and tobacco.

The gentlemen, representing a great variety of interests, were much gratified at the spectacle presented by these savages, who appeared in fine spirits, and entertained their visitors with a display of their abilities in dancing and singing. Their dances resembled in great degree the popular burlesque of the Shaking Quakers. In their singing they preserve good time, but their voices are rather sharp and shrill. Their leader in these accomplishments displayed the genius of a Musard or a Julien. One of the refrains reminded their auditors of a chorus in "Ernani." The whole exhibition was exceedingly interesting and novel, in which the negroes seemed to take great delight.

Very few are left in the Hospital, and those manifest anxiety to get out. The ailments with which they are afflicted are readily yielding to medical treatment, and the general health of the gang has much improved since they have been under the care of Drs. S. L. Lockwood and OGIER.

Among these negroes are three who were originally employed on shore, before the cargo were embarked, in cooking provisions for the negroes, as they were gathered at the barracoons. They can talk in Portuguese and Spanish. They say that they were not purchased, but that the white men brought them away without their consent. They express themselves as happy now, and would prefer to stay here rather than to return. The wants of the entire gang are very simple and few; mainly consisting in the gratification of hunger, thirst, and some trifling vices. Dr. HAMILTON exerts himself to render them comfortable, and their contented and satisfied faces attest the success of his endeavors.

Lieut. Bradford yesterday received a telegraphic dispatch from the Hon. ISAAC TOUCEY, Secretary of the Navy, ordering him to deliver everything into the hands of the United States Marshal, and to report himself with his command at Boston forthwith. Lieut. BRADFORD took immediate steps to obey the order, and, unless detained by subpœna to appear before the United States Commissioner's Court, of which we are not advised, it was his intention to leave the city last night, by the Northeastern Railroad

Suicide.

An old man named JAMES THOMAS, residing with Mr. DANIEL FINCH, of North Castle, Westchester County, committed suicide on Thursday by shooting himself with a pistol. The family of Mr. FINCH were at dinner at the time, and hearing the report of a pistol in a shop adjoining the house, Mr. FINCH went out to learn the cause, when he found Mr. THOMAS dead, the ball having passed through the brain. Mr. THOMAS was about 60 years of age, and was subject to fits of aberation. He had made several previous attempts to destroy himself by taking laudanum, but failed, he taking it in too large quantities.

Mr. JACOB PLANT, 36 years of age, died in Manchester, Mass., on Monday last, of voluntary starvation. Mr. P. was paying attention to a young lady of the town some three years ago, but his proposal for marriage was rejected. This disappointment preyed upon his mind and he soon afterwards attempted to blow his brains out, but only succeeded in destroying both eyes. He has consequently remained blind for three years. During that time he made an unsuccessful attempt to starve himself. The second time he was successful—meeting his end as above stated. He had partaken of nothing for nine weeks but coffee, sweetened water and morphine—finding his chief sustenance during that time from the fat of his system.

Miscellaneous.

The first general muster of the Uniform Militia of Vermont, under the recent re-organization of the system, and one of the most gratifying and successful military exhibitions ever witnessed in the State, was held at Brandon on Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 1 and 2. Nine companies responded by their presence to the invitation of Gov. FLETCHER.

The following is an abstract of the business of the Pension Bureau, under the act of 3d of March, 1855, for the last month, (August): Number of applications for bounty land received, 838; number of warrants or certificates issued, 1,055; total number of application received, 291 391; total number of warrants or certificates issued, 227,614. It will require 28 567,250 acres of the public lands to satisfy these warrants.

The Hon. F. K. Zollicoffer, Member of Congress from the Nashville District, Tennessee, has been elected President of the Nashville and Chatanooga Railroad.

STRUBEN FESTIVAL AT BALTIMORE.—This great festival came off Thursday, and was an imposing spectacle. The procession was estimated to contain from 7,000 to 8,000 persons, comprising the several German associations of that city and various military companies, who marched with banners, music, &c., to the festival grounds, where a tent had been erected, 160 feet long and 80 feet wide, and dinner was served to 2,000 persons. A most interesting feature in the procession was a large plaster bust of General STRUBEN, about five feet in height, and executed in the atelier of Mr. A. HOFFMAN. It was borne upon a car prepared expressly for that purpose. The workmen employed in the piano factories of Messrs. KNABE & Co., and Messrs. WILLIAM GAEHLE & Co., appeared in line with flags composed entirely of shavings, ingeniously wrought. Another novel feature was the German bakers of Baltimore, in their "uniform of office." They carried the identical flag which was first unfurled by them on the occasion of the celebration attendant upon the laying of the foundation of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, on the 21st of February, 1828. After arriving upon the ground several orations were delivered, preceded, however, by some thirty singing associations and the several bands, singing and playing the great German hymn, "A Strong Castle is our Lord," in which the vast assemblage joined.

ACCIDENT ON THE HUDSON RIVER RAILROAD.—A shocking accident occurred on the Hudson River Railroad on Friday, at Yonkers. A man named ROSEZ was run over by a train and mangled in a terrible manner. He was sleeping on the track at the time. One of his legs and both his hands were cut off. The train stopped and backed to the scene of the accident as soon as possible, when the conductor having done all he could for the poor fellow, ordered the train to proceed, which it did, without further delay.

New Spring Wheat.

We were favored on Saturday with a sample of new Spring Wheat, raised in Illinois. It was in good condition, but the berry was very small and badly shriveled. One party who examined it thought eight or ten bushels of such Wheat would be required to make a barrel of Flour. Yet it has been stated that the sample before us is a fair specimen of the bulk of the crop of Spring Wheat raised in Illinois this season.

Spirit of the Trade Circulars.

H. D. HULL'S HIDE AND LEATHER CIRCULAR.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, Sept. 4, 1858.

The month commenced with an active demand from the trade, which continued without any variation in prices until about the 10th. The extremely light importation and fast diminishing stock caused a speculative demand, and during the second week importers readily obtained an advance of 1c. ₱ lb. Even at this rise many holders refused to sell, and the following week a still further advance was realized, which induced most importers to dispose of their stock. The market closes buoyant, with prices fully 3c. ₱ lb. higher than at the beginning of the month, and a very meagre stock in store. Sales this month amount to 165,000 Hides. The receipts during September will be more liberal, as several cargoes are now fully due from Buenos Ayres, Orinoco and California. Imports this month have been quite moderate, amounting to 160,752 from foreign ports—a large portion of which were from Europe, and 15,692 from coastwise ports; total, 116,444. 12 362 Hides of the coastwise were from neighboring ports, and 3,330 Southern Texas, &c. EAST INDIA STOCK—Calcutta Cows are quiet. The large stock on hand, and several parcels expected, deter dealers from operating largely. Buffaloes, if of prime quality, sell readily; of these there is a very light stock in first hands. The receipts for the month have been 218 bales Calcutta Hides, chiefly Cows. SALTED HIDES—Ox and Cow are in limited supply, and good demand. The receipts of foreign Hides are quite nominal. Horse Hides are scarce and wanted. Prices are extremely high when compared with the rates ruling for other descriptions. The receipts this week have been very liberal, including three cargoes which arrived yesterday, and have not as yet been offered for sale. The demand has been active, and the highest rates current last week have been obtained. Buenos Ayres selling at 26c., and Orinocos at 25c. Our stock in store is very light, most of the supply in first hands being parcels afloat. Receipts for the week have been 11,180 from foreign ports, as follows: 3,878 Porto Cabello, ex Borussia, from Hamburg; 600 Buenos Ayres; 1,870 Bogota; 407 Savanilla ex New York, from Bremen; 550 Sanvanilla, ex Henrietta; 3,675 Chagres, &c., ex Costa Rica; 10,564 coastwise. Total, foreign and coastwise, 21,744. The Ocean Telegraph, from California, has about 20,000 Dry and Salted Hides. Sales have been 38,740 Hides.

The Stock on hand of Ox and Cow hides is 52 700, (same time last year, 203,000; year before, 47,300,) as follows: 17,600 dry Orinoco; 1,000 dry Savanilla and Bogota; 6,500 dry Porto Cabello and Laguayra; 600 dry Barcelona; 4,000 dry Port au Platte and St. Domingo; 400 dry and salted Maracaibo; 4,000 dry Chagres; 2,600 dry Tampico; 13,600 dry and dry salted California; 800 dry Southern, Texas, Western, &c.; 2,000 salted California; 200 bales Singapore Buffaloes; 620 bales Calcutta Buffalo and Cow; 887 dry Buenos Ayres Horse; 8,000 dry Buenos Ayres Kips.

SKINS—Goat are in active request with a moderate supply. Deer—The stock continues light with a fair demand from dealers and manufacturers. Receipts of Deer are 30 bales Chagres, ex Costa Rica.

LEATHER—The market has been steady during the month, with sales about equal to the receipts, and but little variation in prices. Many of the Trade consider that an advance on Leather would be detrimental to the Boot and Shoe Trade, and consequently have not asked an advance. Leather is now fully 3c. ₱ lb. below the price of the raw material, and tanners have certainly a very gloomy prospect for obtaining a profit on the stock now going out, unless a material advance should take place on Leather. The sales this week are fully up to the average, and about the same as the receipts, making but little alteration in the Stock. Prices remain unchanged, but are quite firm. Light weights are but little sought after, with a large supply on hand. We quote: Oak slaughter and salted, good light, 26c.@29c.; Oak Slaughter and salted, good middle, 28c.@30c.; Oak Slaughter and salted, good heavy, 27c @29c.; Oak light, Southern, 24c.@26c; Oak heavy, for banding, 27c.@30c.; Oak heavy, Spanish, all weights, 26c.@28c.; Oak heavy, cropped, 34c.@35c; Hemlock, Buenos Ayres, &c., good light, 23c.@24½c.; Hemlock, Buenos Ayres, &c., good middle, 25c.@26c.; Hemlock, Buenos Ayres, &c., good heavy, 23½c.@25c.; Hemlock, Orinoco, &c., good light, 21c.@22c.; Hemlock, Orinoco, &c., good middle, 23½c.@24½c.; Hemlock, Orinoco, &c., good heavy, 22½c.@23c.; Hemlock, Orinoco, and B. A. damaged all weights, 18½c.@21c.; Hemlock Orinoco, and B. A. poor, all weights, 12c.@14c.; Hemlock, Slaughter, in rough, 26c.@28c., on six months credit.

WM. G. CUTTING'S FLOUR AND GRAIN CIRCULAR

NEW-YORK, Friday, Sept. 4, 1858.

FLOUR, &c—The past has been a quiet week, and the market without remarkable change. The demand for Flour has been mostly confined to the home trade, there having been little or no inquiry for export. The receipts have been moderate. A slightly better demand has prevailed for Western brands, while rejected State has been less sought after. Southern Flour is unchanged; the demand is moderate. Canadian Flour is very scarce, and prices are a trifle better, closing, however, nominally. There is no Superfine offering. Rye Flour is unaltered. Corn Meal is without change to notice.

GRAIN—The arrivals of Wheat during the week have been very limited indeed, and the business moderate, confined mainly to a speculative demand for Southern and Western account and for home millers use. There is scarcely any export inquiry, shippers views being materially lower than present prices. There have been but few sales of Spring Wheat, and prices are, of course, in a great measure nominal. A fair proportion of the Western Wheat now in market is of the new crop, which has come forward in very good order. Prices have generally favored purchasers. Rye is heavy and lower, the supply is ample and demand moderate, closing at 73c @76c. Corn—The supply of Corn is increasing. The demand for inferior parcels is fair, and for the better grades limited. The market closes heavily. Southern Yellow is nominal. Oats are quiet, but steady. Barley is inactive and nominal, at 65c.@73c.

FREIGHTS continue dull. Flour to Liverpool, 9d.@1s.; Grain, 2¼d.@3½d., in bulk and in ships' bags.

East for Boston, by Steamboat.....4 P.M.

☞ The European mails by the steamship Canada, from Boston for Liverpool, on Wednesday next, will close at the New York Post-Office, on Tuesday afternoon, to go by railroad at 2½ o'clock, to go by steamboat at 4½.

The Times for California.

The Times for California will be issued This Morning, in season to mail by the United States Mail Steamship Moses Taylor. Mail closes at 1 o'clock P. M. This paper will contain a full account of the unparalleled demonstration in this City to commemorate the success of the Atlantic Telegraph. Also, complete Summaries of Foreign and Domestic intelligence, received since the sailing of the last steamer for California; Reports of all public Meetings, &c. Commercial Affairs; full lists of Marriages and Deaths; Editorial Articles on Current Topics; and a great amount of Miscellaneous Matter.

Price—In wrappers, ready for mailing, 5 cents per copy. Agents will please send in their orders as early as possible.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The telegraph from St. Johns, N. F., brings intelligence from Europe, received by the steamer Fulton, off Cape Race. The Fulton sailed from Southampton on the 25th ult., and was boarded by the news-yacht on Friday afternoon. Commercial matters wore a more favorable face. The Agamemnon very nearly escaped destruction by fire. On the Oxford and Wolverhampton Railroad a serious collision had occurred, resulting in the death of several persons and the serious mutilation of others. The Queen was still in Germany. The terms of treaty with China are re-stated, to the effect that the Empire is opened to foreigners; that foreign intercourse is to be conducted through consuls stationed at Tien-Sin, that the south bank of the Amoor River is to be the northern frontier of Manchooria. Baron Gros, the French Ambassador was about returning home.

By the arrival of the brig Alma we have files of the Nassau, N. P., Guardian to the 25th ult. They contain no news of particular interest to our readers. The gratifying intelligence of the successful laying of the Atlantic cable was received on the 18th by the brig Atlantic, from this port. Seventy-five per cent. salvage had been awarded on the net proceeds of the bark Mary Chipman, of Calais, Me., wrecked at Long Cay, Crooked Island, while on her voyage from St. Jago de Cuba to Boston, laden with tobacco and sugar. Fifteen pounds sterling had also been accorded to the wreck master.

The steamer Cass-Yrissari, formerly the American Eagle, is announced to leave this port to-day for Nicaragua, to take her position on the Nicaragua route as the first of the lake boats belonging to the American Atlantic and Pacific Ship Canal Company. The Cass-Yrissari, it is expected, will connect with the Hermann, which, with the Washington, are to ply between San Juan and San Francisco. On Saturday a large number of Mr. White's friends were entertained on board the Cass-Yrissari, and speeches were made by the Nicaraguan Minister and others. A report is given elsewhere.

Quarantine affairs contineud yesterday to engross much of public attention, and to form the chief staple of discussion and remark. Arrangements are made to erect a large building immediately for the temporary accommodation of the sick. Iron houses will be erected in place of those destroyed. The sick have been placed, some in tents, others in a barn, and a large number sent to Ward's Island. They suffered very much during the heavy rains which prevailed on Saturday evening. Ray Tompkins, Justice Chas. De Forest, Mathew Carroll, Wm. Muller, Jacob Vanderbilt, Thomas Garrett and John C. Thompson were arrested and taken before Justice Welsh, upon a warrant charging them with aiding in the recent burning of the Quarantine buildings. Warrants were issued for about 150 more, but the above are all that have been arrested. They were bailed by Commodore Vanderbilt. The frigate Sabine has been anchored near the shipping at Quarantine, by order of the Commodore at the Navy Yard, to afford any protection which may be required. At last accounts yesterday matters remained quiet, but there were some threats made to burn the infected district in Tompkinsville.

One of the reporters of the Tribune who had made himself unpopular with the incendiaries at Tompkinsville, by a faithful exposure of their damning deeds on Thursday night, was assaulted in a cowardly manner by some of the Sepoys in that village on Saturday afternoon, just as he was about to take the boat for this City. They pelted him with stale eggs, and threw a quantity of flour upon his person. He quietly remarked that the odor of the eggs was "rank and smelt to Heaven,' but it was perfume compared with the moral stench which pervaded the atmosphere of the town.

The Commissioners of Health met on Saturday and resolved to direct the Commissioners of Repairs and Supplies to procure 1,000 hemlock boards and joists, and erect a temporary Hospital at Quarantine. Dr. Thompson defended his course at Quarantine. It was resolved that the invaders of Quarantine should be prosecuted.

The Commissioners of Emigration at their meeting, Saturday, appointed Commissioners Verplanck and Carrigan a Committee to confer with the Mayor or Board of Health, regarding Quarantine matters. The propriety of erecting fire-proof iron buildings at Quarantine was spoken of.

The Spanish brig Inmaculada, belonging to Bilboa, yesterday put into this port in distress, having lost her captain, mate, second mate and one of the crew from the yellow fever. The vessel sailed from St. Jago on the 8th of August, bound to Bremen with coffee, tobacco and rum. Capt. Azadi died on the 27th of August, the mate on the 22d, the second mate on the 18th, and one of the seamen on the 14th. All hands were well on leaving port. The ship was fellen in with on the 18th, having a signal of distress flying, by the ship Richmond, of Boston, (lat. 35°, long. 64°,) and the second mate, Michael A. Strong, placed on board to navigate her to this port. There were only four men and two boys left on board. Mr. Strong kept on deck, never once going below. The brig was anchored in the Lower Bay.

The body of Mr. James Miller, formerly Mayor of Newark was discovered Saturday evening in the dock at the foot of Beekman-street. Mr. Miller left his home to attend the Cable celebration in Jersey City on Thursday evening last. He was suffering from mental aberration, caused by losses in business, and it is supposed that in this condition he either committed suicide or accidentally fell into the water and was drowned. There were no marks of violence on his person.

Saturday was a quiet day in General Business. 1800 bales of Cotton found buyers at very full prices. Flour and Wheat were inactive at about previous figures. Corn was depressed and purchasers had any existing advantage. Groceries were lightly dealt in. Resin was in good demand at rising prices. The movement in Provisions were to a moderate extent. Freights were dull and heavy, with 785 vessels of all classes in port.

The Quarantine Culprits.

If justice were sure as it is slow, there would be some satisfaction in knowing that a half-dozen of the Quarantine rioters have been imprisoned. We should be enabled then to foresee the proper punishment of those who, regardless of life and the rights of property, are guilty of the act of insurrection; we should witness the establishment of an example that would warn others from deeds thus defiant of law, order and humanity. From the late and reluctant interference of the authorities, however, we have nothing to hope touching the energy of their action hereafter. They declined to prevent the consummation of the work of destruction; left the sick to perish exposed in their helpless condition to the pitiless storm; took no action to prevent the introduction of the fever into the City, where it now in consequence is said to exist; and urged no extraordinary sanitary measures to prepare for and mitigate the ravages of a pestilence, which their official neglect may bring upon us. There is, indeed, no room to anticipate that Tompkins and his accomplices are to be held answerable for any of all the fearful consequences that have resulted, or may yet result, from their inexcusable offence.

For, notwithstanding the efforts of a certain portion of the Press to whitewash the rioters, their offence is bare of palliation Let it be granted that the present site of Quarantine has, in the progress of population, become inappropriate. It is equally true that the fact has been recognized by the government of the State, and every legislative action demanded by the residents in the neighborhood has been promptly taken. At a great but ill-judged expense the property at Seguine's Point was bought and built upon, and a mob rendered it useless. Strict justice might have insisted that, since Staten Islanders thus nullified and trampled upon laws passed at their own volition, no further legislation should be granted. It might and should have insisted that the incendiaries who destroyed the buildings at Prince's Bay be brought to punishment before any other steps should be taken to gratify an insurgent population. It unfortunately took another course. The Legislature hastened to expedite the work of removal. It packed off a Commissioner to repeat the old petition to the Legislature of New-Jersey for a place on Sandy Hook. This effort failing, with unexampled activity an act was passed appropriating a large sum for locating the establishment upon one of the shoals in the outer bay; a measure that must presently have rid the island of its nightmare forever. While preparations for carrying the act into effect were actually pending; at a moment when it was obvious that the State had done its utmost to remove the evil; at a moment when to employ mob-law and violence would not only be an act of signal ingratitude, a work of criminal supererogation, but would expose the island itself, and this filthy City, to the desolation of a fearful plague, these people have applied the torch, turned out the sick to perish, and let loose a fatal disease upon an unprepared community. An act of more wanton turpitude is inconceivable, an act more deserving of the full vengeance of the law. Had legal forms, though of questionable application, been complied with, the proceeding would have been no less censurable. Had there been a formal indictment of the place as a nuisance by a Grand Jury from the body of the county; had the Sheriff been furnished with authority to abate it; and had he summoned the entire population as a posse to aid him, the proceedings at a moment so critical would have still wanted excuse. As the case stands, it lacks the color of law, prudence, and humanity. It is condemned at every point.

Could we believe punishment of the guilty to be honestly contemplated, and that accessories both before and after the fact are to be brought to book, we should trust that action of the Press which, after the first demonstration, by its undisguised sympathy and approval, stimulated the second, might not be overlooked. In this task of inciting to riot, by justifying the rioters, the Herald and Tribune were equally efficient. The former, with characteristic demoniacal ferocity, went the entire length of justifying the insurgents. The latter, with insincere and shallow reservations, equally characteristic of a print whose interest has long taught it a Jesuitical concealment of vicious principles and proclivities the bold utterance of which would insure its pecuniary ruin, enlarged on the provocation to the crime, affected to demonstrate the impracticability of a different course, and labored to establish the impression that this, if there ever can be, is a case where the people are authorized to disregard the laws of society, and proceed directly to a desired end. It is hard for the Tribune to conceal its liking for any act, or system, or theory, conflicting with established order. Its sympathy in the present case with that of other like-minded authorities, unquestionably went a great way toward prompting the second scene of this scandalous drama; and the award of justice will be open to the censure of criminal partiality if it exempt such lawless energies from their measure of punishment. If the laws are to be administered, let them reach all implicated. Thus only can we hope to silence an incendiary Press, whose teachings not only imperil private property, but public safety, health and order.

Slander—Proof Demanded.

In the first explosion of sympathy for the midnight incendiaries and assassins of Staten Island, the Tribune thought proper to libel not only the entire people of New-Jersey, but the entire body of New-York merchants. It charged the former, through their representatives at Trenton, with being bribed to refuse the cession of Sandy Hook for Quarantine; and the latter with having administered bribes, not only there, but at Albany, in order to prevent removal from the actual site. Assured of the falsity of these accusations, but aware that the Tribune is more profoundly versed than we in the business of corruption, we have waited patiently for either a retraction of the charge, or for specifications to sustain it, and we have waited in vain. We now call upon the Tribune to furnish the one or the other. If the allegations be recklessly false, as we hold them to be, the inventors should be held answerable. If they are well-founded, let the merchants of New-York be duly censured.

The Tribune is, of course, aware of the difficulties involved in its case. It has to prove that New-Jersey was bribed, not to do what it was obstinately, chronically, almost unanimously bent on not doing; and that New-York merchants offered this ridiculous bribe, when every interest of the New-York merchant is on the side of having the thing done. With all its practice in defending absurdity and paradox, our neighbor will, we apprehend, find its power taxed to the utmost in this instance; and yet it must either make its case good, or consent to be stigmatized as a wholesale slanderer. To your task, then, or accept the penalty. It is high time the abettors of mob law, and assailants of order, and property, and character were brought to account.

Neutrality of Telegraphs—A New Line.

The President's telegram to the Queen, it will be remembered, contained diplomatic as well as congratulatory matter. It suggested that steps should be forthwith taken to establish the inviolability of the Ocean Telegraph in periods of war. As it unfortunately happens that Her Majesty conducts foreign affairs through the office of a Secretary assigned to that duty, no response has yet been received to this overture, and we shall probably have to wait some time for an authoritative expression of the British view. In the meantime, the French Government has accepted, if it have not anticipated, the President's idea. The Patrie, officially inspired, uses language like this:

"Would an English squadron respect the communications between France and Algeria, or a French squadron those between England and Canada? Ought the commerce of other countries to suffer by the quarrels of two rival nations? Would not a new conquest be achieved by the cause of peace were the neutrality of telegraphic communications to be proclaimed? Another bond would then unite mankind, and a fresh step would be made towards the fraternal union of all Christian nations."

The neutrality of the telegraph, land and marine, is obviously carrying the American project one step farther, and may involve results the President will hesitate to approve. One great use of the land telegraph to powers, who may not choose to maintain large standing armies, is to expedite the transportation of troops from points of security to those threatened with attack. It belongs to the same order of strategy as the employment of railroads for that object, and is, in fact, an indispensable portion of the system. The value of the railroad in this point of view, the Emperor—who is, perhaps, one of the ablest theorists in military affairs now living—has attested in directing his energies to those connecting all the fortifications of the French frontier. Now, the plan of foregoing the use of the telegraph in military operations, as proposed by the French journal, must, logically, be attended with the non-user of railroads for such purposes—a sacrifice of little moment to first-rate powers, but fatal to the security of the weaker. On the same principle, therefore, that we refuse to accede to the abolition of privateering, must we decline to accede to this new proposition. It goes to render the strong stronger, and the weak weaker. No policy could be more unfortunate for the United States.

With regard to the submarine lines, however, the case is different. Nations actually at war may have equal right to use them. Or, if constructed by mutual enterprise and capital, they may, as in the instance of the Atlantic Cable, terminate at both ends in the territory of one, and, therefore, in the event of a war between the two governments, be unfairly controlled by the one to the detriment of the other. In that case, the equity of neutralizing the line must be admitted, and should be reduced to practice. That it will be so there is reason to doubt. The British Government notoriously aided in the Atlantic enterprise with especial reference to its value as an additional security for her colonial possessions on this continent in the event of war either with the United States or with a European State. To yield to either the French or the American proposition would be to forego this incalculable advantage, a sacrifice we should hardly venture to anticipate from the most liberal of cabinets. The utmost we can expect is the establishment of the principle of inviolability and impartiality; that all messages, at all times, peaceful or belligerent, shall be faithfully passed irrespective of their import, and that none of the perfidy chronic with British Home Secretaries, in regard to Post-Office correspondence, shall be practised with the telegrams. From the present line we have no more to ask.

Another question, however, at once presents itself. Is it absolutely certain that we cannot have a rival line of submarine telegraph, one end of which shall rest on our own shores and the other upon the shore of continental Europe? This question was propounded to Lieutenant Maury by the Committee of the House of Representatives, while the bill in regard to the Atlantic Telegraph was under consideration. The Lieutenant, assured of the existence of a remarkable plateau between Newfoundland and Ireland, and confident of the irregular level of the ocean bed elsewhere, at once expressed his belief that the line he had indicated was the only one practicable, and that an American terminus was therefore out of the question. There is, however, very strong reason to think this dictum of science entirely erroneous. There is potential ground for suspecting the plateau to be a creature of fancy, and for believing the ocean bed there to be quite as mountainous as at any point further southward, from the Western Isles to Cape Hatteras for instance. The whole business turns upon the reliability of deep-sea soundings. Professor Maury assumes this as a certainty, and therefore assumes the existence of the plateau, although he laboriously discredits the surveys of Lieutenant Berryman. Other scientific authorities, however, at least as eminent, hold that the report of the best sounding apparatus yet devised is only proximately correct as to certain depths, below which it is quite likely to produce uniform results; in other words, to produce the erroneous idea of a level bottom, when in fact it gives no information of the bottom at all. The leading article for the current month of that standard periodical, Silliman's Journal, takes this view. Professor Trowbridge, its author, entered upon the investigation at the request of Professor A. D. Bache, of the Coast Survey; and after thorough inquiry, and the application of mechanical and mathematical principles, and the results of experience to the subject, shows beyond doubt that there is no basis whatever for the belief in the existence of a submarine plain on the parallel designated by Lieutenant Maury. To use his own language:

"The idea of a 'plateau' existing between Newfoundland and Ireland is not warranted, it seems to me, by any observations that have yet been made. The range of errors may be as great as five hundred fathoms, which would admit of the existence of a submarine mountain on this line half as high as Mount Washington. A true section of the Atlantic can only be determined by improved modes of sounding, since from the preceding discussion we may be warranted in the conclusion that it is practically impossible to determine the greatest depths of the ocean by the methods now in use."

We may add, that this conclusion is confirmed by the report of the persons in charge of laying the cable, who constantly noted variations in the quantity of the cable paid out for equal superficial distances, only to be accounted for by the supposition that they were passing over vast valleys and mountain ranges, irreconcileable with the idea of a subaqueous plain, and which were not indicated in the Berryman-Dayman surveys.

With these grounds for believing that the bottom of the sea is as available at one point as at another, and with the probability furnished by the actual working of the Irish-American cable, that the magnetic current will traverse the widest stretch of the Atlantic, we trust soon to see a new enterprise inaugurated, rendering us independent of a single line controlled by a foreign Government. We have mentioned a connection with Europe by way of the Western Islands. Such a line would have the advantage of relays at a mid-ocean station, and of passing through and terminating upon the territory of Portugal—a power not likely to be involved in unfriendly relations with the United States. The project commends itself to the enterprising. There will be ample work and splendid rewards for as many transatlantic lines as can be laid. And we may thus secure most effectually that neutrality of communication which a line in the sole control of a foreign Government can not afford.

The Bombardment of Djidda.

The indignation of the French journals that the English should have taken upon themselves to bombard Djidda single-handed, without waiting for as many months as might be necessary for France to send a frigate round to the Red Sea to share in the glory of the exploit, is not likely to rouse the sympathies of the rest of mankind. The French have so long enjoyed the unenviable notoriety of taking to themselves the lion's share of the glory attaching to the most trumpery skirmish in which any other power happens to act in concert with them, that the world is not very likely to weep over their disappointment in this instance. All the nations of the continent have already offered up their hecatombs at the shrine of French glory, and have got very little thanks for their pains. The Germans, and Poles, and Italians, who followed "mon oncle" round the world, and left pyramids of their bones on all his battle-fields, from Monte Notte to Moscow, and have for half a century enjoyed as the reward of their sacrifices the kicks of their own sovereigns and the unlimited perusal of French blague, were hugely delighted to see England in the Russian war, after so many centuries of cold méfiance, caught in the same trap. France took up arms in the cause of European liberty; France won Alma, and Inkermann, and Tchernaya, and beseiged Sebastopol, and carried all the forts by assault, and then came home, and with the aid of a language diffused over the European continent more widely than any other, and of manners more than ordinarily cordial and communicative, succeeded in telling the tale to their own satisfaction, and the infinite disgust of the British. In the military operations next undertaken in combination, against Canton, there was a repetition of the same comedy. The British in the assault on the city had a land force of three thousand men, the French but nine hundred. In accordance with a very common piece of military politeness, the post of honor was accorded to the inferior force, and the French entered foremost through the paltry breaches, from which the frightened pigtails fled in dismay, and Paris was forthwith assured that France had captured Canton.

An expedition against Madagascar of the allied forces, to chastise the pirates of those regions, was the next thing talked of, and we were all waiting to hear of the French having overrun the whole Malagasy territory, while the British fleet was coming to anchor, when John Bull suddenly grew restive, and for the first time for a long while undertook a little bombarding and "chastising" on his own private account—at Djidda—without even asking leave of the Emperor, or waiting for the assistance of a French fleet.

The shelling of Djidda we thought and still think the most righteous military operation in which any British ship has been engaged for a long time. We think that if the principle be once established that all sorts of abominable crimes in all parts of the Turkish Empire may be perpetrated upon Christians without the possibility of punishing the offenders until a special commissioner comes down from Constantinople, the sooner Christians leave it the better. The Porte will not send down commissioners every day, to examine into every outrage; and if it be once allowed that the Pasha on the spot must hold his hand until a functionary arrive from Constantinople, crime will rarely be punished at all. Nobody will seriously assure us that the government of an Empire can be administered by means of special messengers sent all over its surface, to call murderers and highwaymen to account two months after their offences are committed. The idea even is preposterous. If Turkey has no local authorities competent to afford protection to life—and it appears she has not—foreign powers must do as the British have done, and administer justice themselves.

Possibly the bombardment of Djidda was partly due to a desire on the part of England to get rid forever of the incubus of the French alliance—or in the East, at least, where prestige is of so much importance to her cause before the Mohammedan population as the avenger of her own wrongs. Whatever the motive which dictated it, the act itself is worthy of approval; and we may add, that all symptoms of a dissolution of the alliance itself ought to afford nothing but matter for rejoicing. So far as we have seen of it, it has been an alliance fruitful in nought but bloodshed and implements of destruction. While the people of England and America were rejoicing over a successful application of science to the purposes of civilization and Christianity, the allied monarchs were gloating over its application not to the purposes of legitimate defence, but of wicked aggression. They constituted themselves a roving commission for the general regulation of the whole earth, and have managed since their confederation to shed torrents of innocent blood in pursuit of objects as doubtful in point of morality as chimerical politically. The alliance is diverting England from the path in which her greatest and most lasting triumphs have been won, and precipitating her into an insane rivalry in fleets, and armies, and fortifications. It has already stopped her ears to the cries of the unfortunates who lie buried in the dungeons of Spielberg and Naples, and is all but extorting from her a connivance at the Slave-trade. If it needed any other flaw to damn it, it would have it in the open condemnation of the British people, who are sick, and sick with reason, of seeing their Queen put through a course of political morality by the hero of the second of December. We love peace, and we desire to see it reign forever, not between France and England only, but between all nations; but it must be peace based on reciprocal esteem and mutual good offices. A peace which can be confirmed by such ceremonials as were lately witnessed at Cherbourg is a peace which barbarians might enjoy for the sake of its repose, but it is not such a peace as Christian men should desire.

The Cargo of Negroes at Charleston—Quandary of the Carolinian Authorities.

We copy from the Charleston Mercury, of Wednesday last, the opinion of the Attorney-General of South Carolina on the case of the Echo's cargo of Africans. A law of that State, passed in 1835, forbids any free negro or person of color to be brought into the limits of the State, "under any pretext whatever, by land or water," and in case the law is violated, the negroes so brought in are to be arrested by the Sheriff, taken before a Magistrate, committed to prison or held to bail, tried by a jury of three freeholders, ordered to leave the State, and, in case of failure, to be sold. We learn from the Mercury that, on Sunday morning, "a number of gentlemen" called upon Sheriff Carew, of the Charleston District, and laid before that officer "formal information," with a view of requiring him to proceed under the act above mentioned. The Sheriff, to do him justice, appeared sufficiently willing, but, as official responsibilities often moderate zeal, he thought it prudent first to take advice from Messrs. Whaley & Lord, his lawyers, and also from the Attorney-General. But these high sources of counsel did not agree. In fact they took opposite grounds, Messrs. Whaley and Lord advising the Sheriff that it was his duty to seize the Africans, while the Attorney-General decided that he had no business to touch them. The latter based his opinion upon certain acts of Congress authorizing the introduction of the negroes in question, which acts he conceded to be constitutional and valid, and ingeniously dodged the manifest conflict between the National and State laws, by saying that inasmuch as the acts of Congress were made in pursuance of the constitutional powers of that body, they were "part of the law of South Carolina."

The Sheriff, it may be believed, found himself but little relieved by the wisdom of his advisers, and, therefore, in order "to satisfy all parties," he made a formal demand for the surrender of the negroes upon the U. S. Marshal, which demand that officer, as a matter of course, declined to comply with. The Mercury informs us that the Sheriff, "being unwilling, under all the circumstances, to force a conflict of jurisdiction between the State and the Federal Governments," concluded "to forego further measures." In this he showed his discretion, But what a precious opportunity to vindicate the Slave-trade has thus been lost? When will the friends of that traffic have such another?

The Africans, it would seem, are well cared for under the direction of the U. S. officials. They have been removed from Castle Pinckney to Fort Sumter, and a telegram, received yesterday from Washington, states that the Secretary of the Navy has directed the steam-frigate Niagara to repair immediately to Charleston for the purpose of taking them back to Africa. A considerable portion of the chivalry are undoubtedly grieved to witness such an act of emancipation; but they seem to regard it as inevitable. Having failed to seize the negroes through the instrumentality of Sheriff Carew, they have evidently desisted from all efforts in that direction. No such blessed combination of Christianity and cotton-raising as the Palmetto philanthropists had in view, is reserved for these three hundred poor black savages.

The Observatory Feud.

It is not the ordinary gift of business men to pamphleteer with the off-hand readiness of a penny-a-liner. For this reason probably, and because of the lamented death of Mr. Wilder, the reply of the Trustees of the Dudley Observatory to the attacks of the Scientific Council, and of Mr Barnard, has reached us when the whole subject of controversy is nearly forgotten, crowded in fact from the memory by an access of far more important topics. We can only recall the circumstance, that when the last event previous to the present occurred, the leaguer of Fort Dudley was fairly established; the Trustees without thundering for admission, and the Council within asseverating with the fervor of Mrs. Micawber that they would never desert B. A. Gould. It is like a memory of times long gone by, to open and read this brochure. Journalist and savan will alike be prompted to grasp their weapons anew, and fight the early battle over again.

If, indeed, there be more than one side on which to fight. A mature examination of this vast paper pellet of the Trustees, satisfies us that there is really but one side. What with their careful history of the entire enterprise; their adjudication of the various claims to credit and influence for what has been achieved; their adjudication of the censure for what has been ill done, or recklessly done, or left altogether undone; what with their revelations of correspondence among the various combatants in other days, and down to the present; and their exhibit of figures and facts from the account books of the Corporation; there is certainly no tenable ground left for the scientific people to stand upon. They are in the position of intruders, who, through no devotion to science, but merely to prosecute a factious quarrel with a hostile scientific clique, have thrust themselves into the business, and are resolved to make their false position good, in defiance of reason and right. Mr. Gould, the object of their ill-judged friendship, is proved, over his own handwriting, to be a weak, incompetent, visionary person, wholly unequal to the management of a great institution, and without the confidence or respect of the best scientific names in the country. He has kept none of his engagements with the Trustees—has poured out their money like a spendthrift, for instruments that were to be in use more than two years ago, and one of which the Trustees have never seen, though one is said to be packed up in saw-dust somewhere in the Observatory. The splendid heliometer which was to be the crowning glory of the institution, and towards the construction of which Mrs. Dudley, at the instance of Mr. T. W. Olcott, contributed $14,000, is still unfinished. This job, it will be remembered, Mr. Gould solicited and procured for one Spencer, a friend of his. Sometime after, now more than two years and a half ago, he suggested that it would be better for Mr. Spencer to visit Europe and examine the heliometers at Greenwich and elsewhere, the Trustees paying expenses. This granted, and yet a few days, he had to recommend that Mr. John E. Gavit be sent along as custodian of Mr. Spencer, the latter gentleman having a tendency to go off "upon side issues." So Mr. Spencer and Mr. Gavit departed and returned, and to this day there has not even a working draft of the instrument been prepared. And this case is but a specimen of Mr. Gould in reference to every detail of Observatory management. It has been delay without reason, and expense without limit; until, as the Trustees show, a remonstrance, signed by the leading citizens of Albany, last January, rendered a change of policy necessary. In truth, there is no part of the whole narrative more marvellous than that such interference should have been needed. Why a half dozen men of thorough business habits, and backed by scientific authorities at least equal to the scientific council, should have borne with the obvious trifling of Gould, and loyally footed his bills, and followed out his chimerical schemes to the verge of folly and ruin, and only desisted when urged by outside pressure, is one of those amazing inconsistencies only to be explained on a supposition of their willingness to sacrifice everything for peace. Their forbearance for the long period through which their director has lengthened his rôle of empiric, is a monument of human patience. In their review of the points made by the savans on behalf of Gould, and in the support of the case in all its details, as originally stated by Messrs. Olcott and Wilder, the Trustees are equally successful. The inefficiency, the arrogance, the indolence, the extravagance of Gould are demonstrated; the slurs he cast upon the institution in his foreign correspondence are produced in legible black and white; his private jealousy and hostility toward Peters are verified by his own letters; and all his claims to gratitude for having served the Trustees gratuitously exploded. In fact, there is nothing left of the late director, and very little of Professor Bache, who is found under his own hand exalting the donations of Mr. Olcott above those of Mrs. Dudley, and who indorses Peters as one of the ablest practical astronomers living; the same Olcott whom, in his late pamphlet, he treats with vigorous contempt, and the same Peters whom he styles "a specious, entertaining and pedantic theorist." Messrs. Pierce and Henry come out of the affair with no worse stain than that involved in their adherence to Mr. Gould.

In leaving this subject, and we leave it with pleasure, we sincerely indulge the hope that the Scientific Council will see the impossibility of holding their own against such batteries, legal and logical, as the Trustees bring against them, and may capitulate forthwith. They have still reputation to save; it will be lost by protracting this absurd contest further. Discretion is here the better part of valor: let them surrender.

The Opening of the Nicaragua Transit Route.

The American and Pacific Ship Canal Company inaugurated their first movement towards opening the route by an excursion down the Bay on Saturday last, on board of the steamboat Cass-Yrissari, formerly the American Eagle. About one hundred persons were on board, among whom were Señor Yrissari, the Central American Minister; Joseph L. White, John B. Yelverton, the Agent of the Company, and many other gentlemen, and also several ladies. A band of music was engaged for the occasion, and a fine collation was provided by Bagwell & Ray, of No. 13 Wall-street, after the most approved Downing style. The boat will sail for Lake Nicaragua on Monday, under the charge of Captain Slocum, with several persons formerly associated with the Nicaragua route. Two other boats, the Caroline and the Liberty, will be dispatched for the same destination soon, to run on the river San Juan. Shortly after the boat left the pier, the company assembled in the cabin, and were called to order by Jos. L. White, who presided. The first toast proposed was in honor of

"General Yrissari, the Minister from Central America to the United States"

General Yrissari replied in Spanish, and substantially as follows: He was very much obliged for the compliment paid to him as the Minister from Central America; at the same time he could not arrogate to himself any other merit than that of having conscientiously discharged his duty, not only for the benefit of the country he represents, but also for the United States. If, however, the United States have derived any benefit in these negotiations, while at the same time Nicaragua has sustained no dishonor, he was heartily glad of it. He had no doubt that the work which had been so auspiciously begun would succeed that the United States and Nicaragua would be joined in one common interest. He had no doubt that the Pacific and American Ship Canal Company would meet with great success, and concluded by giving as a toast, which was received with cheers by the company.

Mr. J. B. Pueroy, late Brazilian Consul at this port, gave

General Maximo Jerez, with all the hopes we ought to entertain from his liberal and enlightened views at home.

Mr. Pueroy paid a high compliment to General Jerez, as a gentleman connected with the liberal party of Nicaragua, who had come accredited to this Government, to coöperate with General Yrissari. He is connected with the liberal party in Nicaragua, and would do all in his power to promote amicable relations between the two Governments.

Mr. Johnson proposed the health of Mr. White and Mr. Pueroy.

Joseph L. White responded. To speak of the tolls, the trials, the interventions we have been compelled to meet, would require more time than it would take for this boat to reach the dock from which she started in New-York. It was not their object to gain new ground, but to preserve what they already have against the machinations of men of large fortunes, who were ever ready to bribe Nicaragua officials, and who had bribed them—not here, but there. Men whose greedy dispositions and greedy palms were at all times extended for money, for which they were willing to sacrifice the honor and the interests of their country, and those vested rights which they had pledged to companies. We have had to fight against these men, against the State of Costa Rica, against fillibusters, and against the machinations of steamship commodores, who were willing to expend their wealth, not in charity, but to rob those who are willing to extend the influence, enterprise and energy of this country in opening new lines of communication, not by what they have above, in the brain, but by what they have in their pocket. We have carried on this contest, with the help of good and true men—and when I speak of men I mean this man, laying his hand on Yrissari—(cheers) who are ready, at all times, to stand up for justice and to go for the right. He thrice tendered his resignation to his Government, on the ground that they were willing to do injustice. We have had to fight against Costa Rica, against fillibusters.

A Voice—"And against Monsieur Belly."

Yes, we have been swallowed up in the great French stomach, and have been vomited up again like Jonah on dry land, though here we are not dry. (Great laughter.) That is what a Hoosier, where I once lived, would call a spontaneous sentiment, and I propose that we drink it. We have fought States, fillibusters, Commodores, money, machinations, lies, and we have won; and, as General Taylor would say, if there was anybody in the world, or the rest of mankind, who desired to enter the field, we are ready to fight them.

The speech was received with laughter and applause.

Mr. Pueroy paid a high compliment to Señor Yrissari and Mr. White, as the two persons who had borne the brunt of this battle. After referring to the vacillating course pursued by the Press on the subject, he gave:

The Press of New York—Which always somehow got out the truth.

The sentiment was responded to by one of the reporters, wishing success to the enterprise.

A lady proposed the following:

The Atlantic Cable and the Nicaragua Transit—May the continuity of either never cease.

The sentiment was received with three cheers.

A gentleman proposed the health of John B. Yelverton, Esq., the agent of the Company, to whose business talents he paid a high compliment. Mr. Yelverton replied.

The boat soon after reached Pier No. 1, after a short circuit up the North River, and the Company separated, much delighted with the excursion.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Central American Affairs—Mr Soule—Reconciliation of Walker and Henningsen—Mr. Benjamin as Minister to Spain—The Mission to Paraguay, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.
WASHINGTON, Sunday, Sept. 5.

Mr. SOULE is again here, and will have an interview with the President to-morrow. YRISSARI should look to his laurels, or he may find his treaty obsolete.

Kind relations, I understand, have been restored between HENNINGSEN and WALKER, and the Transit arrangements are in a fair way of being concluded.

The President is not yet entirely satisfied with Mr. BENJAMIN's appointment to Spain, as he lacks one of the greatest requisites necessary to carry out the policy adopted, with success. Yet he is about the best appointment that could be made, all things considered. Mr. BENJAMIN, it is understood, will not accept unless he believes the chances for a reëlection to be against him.

Col. FITZPATRICK, of South Carolina, will be tendered the mission to Paraguay, if his health be such as to justify its acceptance. Q.

[FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
WASHINGTON, Saturday, Sept. 4.

Col. RECTOR has been instructed by the Secretary of the Interior to proceed to Florida, and as soon as the season will permit, to take measures for the removal of the Seminoles, who are now in the ever glades. The Secretary of War is desirous that this shall be done under the superintendence of Col. RECTOR alone, without the interference of the authorities or citizens of Florida. White flags will be distributed through the swamps for the purpose of calling them to a council. No military force will be employed. The Indians will be removed to Arkansas, whether BILLY BOWLEGS and his band where transferred, should the negotiations be successful.

In the case of the disputed title to the Rancho Dio de Los Americanos, in California, the Secretary of the Interior has rejected the survey of the Surveyor-General of that State, and ordered a new one to be made.

Non-Arrival of the North American.

MONTREAL, Sunday, Sept. 5—P. M.

There were no signs of the steamship North American at River du Loup, at 6 o'clock this evening. The weather is very bad; rain falling steadily, accompanied with a good deal of lightning.

[The North American's advices are, however, anticipated by the dispatch of the Fulton's news, received vid Cape Race.]

NEW MUSIC.—Messrs. W. HALL & SON have favored us with the following pieces of music, just issued from their teeming presses: 1. "Mountaineer's Welcome;" German melody, arranged with variations for the piano, by W. V. WALLACE. (A charming melody, with three variations equally charming; one of the best things Mr. WALLACE has done for a long time;) 2. "Rose Softly Blooming;" melody by VERDI, (arranged in the same way, by the same composer;) 3. "Summer Night Caress;" Nocturne. (Beautiful; same composer;) 4. "Hope in Sorrow; a cavatina; effective for any ordinary female voice; (same composer;) 5. "Thou Wilt Come Back Again;" (a sentimental song, in Mr. WALLACE's lackadaisical vein;) 6. "Not a Ripple on the Stream; (a simply constructed and effective duet.) These works are are all worthy of favor.) 7. "The Banks of the Genesee; ballad, by J. R. THOMAS; 8. "Take Back the Ring, dear Jamie;" Scotch ballad, by STEPHEN MASSETT.

FROM HORACE WATERS, Broadway, we have received "The Empire Quadrilles,"—an effective arrangement from German melodies; and "The Swinging Schottische," by A. CULL, one of the prettiest and most graceful Schottisches of the season, and bound to be popular.

NEW PLAYS.—Mr. SAMUEL FRENCH, No. 122 Nassau-street, has favored us with copies of the following new issues: 1. "Shakespeare's Dream"—an Allegory, by JOHN BROUGHAM;" 2. "Opposite Neighbors;" a farce, by J. HOWARD PAUL; 3. "Americans in Paris"—a comedy, in three acts; 4. "The Perse-cuted Dutchman; or, The Original John Schmidt," a farce, by S. BARRY. All these pieces are of American origin.

Amusements.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—Some of the artists were indisposed on Saturday, and there was no performance in consequence thereof. To-night ROSSINI's delightful comic opera of the "Barbiere" will be played, with Mme. GASSIER as Rosina, Signor GASSIER as Figaro, and Signor LABOCETTA (who has just returned from a trip to Europe) as the Count. In this opera Mme. GASSIER has won her best triumph, the music lying easily within the compass of her voice, and its florid character being just what such a pliant organ can accomplish.

WALLACK'S THEATRE.—Mr. H. C. COOPER'S English opera company commences an engagement at this house to-night. BALFE's opera of the "Bohemian Girl" is selected for the occasion, and will be played with the following cast: Miss ANNIE MILNER as Arline, Mr MIRANDA as Thaddeus, Mr. GUILMETTE as the Count, Mr. RUDOLPHSON as Devilshoof. Much may be expected from so many fresh voices. The orchestra will be under the direction of Mr. H. C. COOPER.

BURTON'S THEATRE.—Mr. COLLINS, the Irish comedian and vocalist, enters on his second week to-night. A new bill is put up for the occasion, containing three pieces, namely, "The Fortune Hunters;" the "Happy Man," and "Make Your Wills." Mr. COLLINS' engagement has been attended with decided success.

An improvement has taken place in one feature of the entertainment at this house which merits a word of passing commendation. We refer to the orchestra. Mr. E. MOLLENHAUER, who now has charge of this department, has secured a perfectly excellent band of players, and conducts it with decided skill. We are glad to see that the management gives it a prominent place on the programme. It is entitled to consideration, for it contains some of the best soloists in the country.

LAURA KEENE'S THEATRE.—The addition of Mr. and Mrs. BLAKE to the company at this house leads naturally to the "legitimate." To night we are to have "The Rivals," with a very excellent distribution—Mr. BLAKE playing his famous character of Sir Anthony Absolute, and Mr. JEFFERSON being the Bob Acres. The historical play of "Louis the Eleventh" is to be produced to-morrow night. The frequenters of this well conducted establishment should always remain for the dance by Mlle. LAMOUREUX.

NIBLO'S GARDEN.—The theatre will be closed, to-night, for the purpose of fully rehearsing the tableaux of "Jesse Brown," which drama is to be produced to-morrow night. Miss AGNES ROBERTSON plays her original character of the heroine. The performances are under the direction of Mr. DION BOURCICAULT.

NATIONAL THEATRE.—Newly decorated, and painted, and furnished with all sorts of elegancies and improvements, this popular place of amusement reopened for the season on Saturday night, under the well-approved auspices of Mr. PURDY. The festival programme is repeated to-night, and will be found full of good things. Two new dramas, written expressly for the reopening, will be presented, namely, "Azim al Barmeki, or the Veiled Prophet of Khorassan"—a dramatic version of MOORE's poem; and "Nick Whiffles"—a stage rendering of a famous story. The afterpiece is "Brian O'Linn." An unusually strong company appears in all these pieces—the best company that has ever played at this house.

BOWERY THEATRE.—The Fall season opens at this house to-night. A new and original play in three acts, called "Ireland's Golden Age," will be produced for the occasion, with new and splendid scenery, dresses, &c. The comic pantomime of "The Magic Barrel," and the drama of "The Bride of Lammermoor" will also be played.

BARNUM'S MUSEUM.—THIODON'S interesting Theatre of Arts is still the attraction here. It is preeminently worth seeing. Also the Aquaria.

PALACE GARDEN.—The band under the direction of Mr. HARVEY B DODWORTH, will give a grand concert here to-night. In the afternoon the Iroquois Indians go through their characteristic scenes—very curious and amusing. To-morrow Mr. BAKER gives a monster concert, when the increased orchestra will be augmented by the drum corps of the Seventy-first Regiment. The Palace Garden is the most pleasant place of open-air amusement in the City, and is conducted with faultless propriety.

WOOD'S MINSTRELS.—Negro Minstrelsy in the old style with HORN, BUDWORTH and WHITE as the principal interpreters, is the standing attraction here. A fine programme is arranged for to-night.

CAMPBELL'S MINSTRELS.—This famous corps has been received with great favor during the past week. The Hall (No. 444 Broadway) has been crowded, and the leading attractions are of course announced for repetition during the present week.

City Items.

EX-MAYOR MILLER, OF NEWARK, N J, FOUND DROWNED IN THE EAST RIVER.—The body of Mr. JAS. MILLER, formerly Mayor of Newark, N. J., and Adjutant-General of the State, was discovered on Saturday evening in the dock at the foot of Beekman-street. Some letters and papers found on his person led to his identification. His gold watch and some money were untouched. The body was taken to the Second Ward Station-house, and a telegram sent to his family in Newark, announcing its recovery. Mr. MILLER left his home on Friday afternoon to attend the complimentary dinner given that evening in Jersey City to CYRUS W. FIELD, Captain HUDSON and others, in commemoration of the completion of the Atlantic Cable. He did not attend the dinner, and it is believed that while suffering under the effects of temporary aberration of mind, he crossed the ferry to this City, and while wandering about became bewildered and fell into the dock. Mr. MILLER had lately met with some lossess in his business, and had shown symptoms of mental aberration. An inquest was held yesterday on the body, and there being no marks of violence, a verdict of "Supposed drowning" was rendered. Mr. MILLER was aged 65 years, and has left a numerous and interesting family. The remains were taken last evening to Newark for interment.

MORE AMERICAN HORSES FOR THE EMPEROR OF THE FRENCH.—The Ariel, which left this port on Saturday, took out three horses for the Emperor of the French. They were fine-looking animals of a dark brown color, and about three years old. Two of them were procured near Boston, and the other near Montpelier, Vt., by Mr. WELLINGTON, of Mass., who gave himself much trouble to obtain them, and who accompanies the horses to France. The animals are well quartered on board the Ariel, and the walls of their stalls are thickly padded so as to prevent them suffering any injury during the passage. The price of their passage was $500. The Emperor appears to have been so well satisfied with the span of Vermont horses that he purchased a year ago, that he was induced to order these now on their way to France.

THE REGULARS' PRIMARY ELECTION.—The 'Regulars" held their primary elections in the various Wards in the City Saturday evening, for the choice of Delegates to the Democratic State Convention, which meets at Syracuse on the 15th inst. These primary elections are held under a joint call issued by the People's Committee and the Regulars, and the delegates they elect will present their claims for recognition to the Syracuse Convention in opposition to the delegates who will be chosen this evening under the call of the Tammany General Committee.

MAYOR TIEMANN AND THE MAYOR OF SAVANNAH.—The following is the reply of Mayor TIEMANN to the message of Mayor TURNER, of Savannah, which was read at the Atlantic Telegraph Celebration in this City on Wednesday last:

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, Sept. 1, 1858.

His Honor, Mayor Turner:

On behalf of the citizens of New-York, I send a hearty response to the kindly message of the citizens of Savannah, heartily congratulating them on the auspicious bond of amity between the two kindred nations, prominent in the great work of laying the Atlantic Cable. The fruit of increased human knowledge, it promises to enlarge the sphere of peace and good will among men.

DANIEL F. TIEMANN,
Mayor of New-York.

"DELTA SIGMA."—Under this title a new Society, composed of young men, members of evangelical churches on the East side of the City, was organized on Friday evening last, at the house of one of the members in Henry-street. The object of the Society is, the mutual religious improvement of young Christians, by delivery of Essays on Bible Subjects, comparing of Religious Thoughts, &c. The following gentlemen were elected officers: Dr. VERANUS MORSE, President; JAMES H. MANISZIX, Vice President; FRED'K G. HANSEN, Secretary, and JAMES G. COOPER, Treasurer.

OPENING OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The public schools of this City and Brooklyn will reopen this morning for their regular sessions. The free academy will open on the 15th inst. The school-houses have been well cleaned and neatly fitted up during the vacation by Mr. MCVEY, the industrious Superintendent of School Buildings.

DISTURBANCE ON BOARD THE ARIEL.—A disturbance took place on board the Vanderbilt steamship Ariel, while lying at her dock just previous to sailing, on Saturday. The disturbance was owing to a strike among the firemen. The steam-tug Young America accompanied the Ariel down the Bay, with a Police force on board, in order to suppress any riot that might occur.

UTAH.

THE TERRITORIAL ELECTION.

The "Gentile" Ticket Defeated—Unusually Large Vote—Proceedings in the United States Court—Army News.

From Our Own Correspondent.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, U. T., Saturday, Aug. 7, 1858.

The election for Territorial and County officers, which was held throughout the Territory on Monday last, passed off, as far as we are able to learn, very quietly and peaceably.

In this City, although there was, for the first time since its foundation, votes cast in opposition to the nominees of the Church, yet it created no disturbance, and but little excitement.

The Mormon leaders, perfectly satisfied that we could not carry the day, did not trouble themselves farther than to order all of their subjects to vote; in consequence of this order, however, the vote polled this year far exceeds that generally cast in this City.

The highest number of votes on the Union or "Gentile" ticket, for any one pereon, was 37. The highest number of votes cast was 1,056. Those on the Church ticket who received this vote being voted for also by the "Gentiles."

The following are the members of the Legislature elected in this county on Monday last, and the votes cast for each, as appears from the returns filed in the Secretary's office:

REPRESENTATIVES.

John Taylor	1,053	Joseph A. Young	1,019
Orson Hyde	1,056	H. B. Clawson	1,019
Daniel Spencer	1,056	Wm. H. Hooper	1,014
A P. Rockwood	1 017	Edwin D. Woolley	1,017
Hosea Stout	1,019	Alexander McRae	1,018
Jos. W. Cummings	1,018	S. W. Richards	1,019
Jesse C. Little	1,019

This election will, however, be contested at the next sitting of the County Court, it having been conducted illegally in many respects. In the first place, there is no record on file in the Secretary's office of the election of any Justices of the Peace in this precinct since 1852, and it does not appear in the archives of his office that any certificate of election has been given to a Justice of the Peace since that time. The law provides that the senior Justice of the Peace in each Precinct shall be the judge of the election and shall appoint a clerk, &c. The Justice of the Peace who served at the late election acted without authority, not having a certificate showing that he possessed any authority. Again, the judges of election, such as they were, did not watch or protect the ballot-box. At noon they were all absent, and their places filled by others not legally authorized to be there, one of whom was a candidate for the Legislature, and was elected upon the Church ticket. Thirteen Representatives were voted for and elected, although this Precinct is only entitled to twelve. This was done in consequence of the law passed at the last session of the Legislature, attaching Green River County—in which Fort Bridger is situated—to Great Salt Lake County, and, of course, increasing the number of Representatives in the County thus formed. This law, however, has never been signed by Governor CUMMING, who was at the time in the Territory, but was signed by BRIGHAM. Its validity, therefore, though recognized by the Mormons, will not be recognized by the present Secretary of the Territory.

In consequence of this law there were but few Mormon votes cast in Green River County. The residents of the County living at Fort Bridger and on Green River, voted, however, for the officers to which they are entitled, and elected by a majority of over 100, the Democratic ticket, upon which WILLIAM J. OSBORNE, Esq, formerly of Kansas Territory, was their nominee for Representative in the Legislature. The official returns have not yet been received, so that we have not the exact number of votes polled. This secures us one Gentile Representative in the next Legislature, for, although the Mormons will contest his right to a seat, they cannot sustain themselves in their position.

A most interesting case of habeas corpus was tried during the past week before Chief Justice ECKELS and Associate Justice SINCLAIR, of the Supreme Court of this Territory. It seems that about four years ago the wife of Mr. H. POLYDORE, a lawyer residing in Gloucestershire, England, joined the Mormons and ran away from him. Stealing their only child, a daughter, from the boarding-school at which she was placed, she brought her in a company of Mormons to this place.

The father, in the meantime, made every effort to discover the whereabouts of the mother and child, and a considerable time elapsed before he found out that they were here among the Mormons. Finding that his individual efforts would be unavailing in procuring the return of his child, he applied to Lord MALMESBURY, the Minister of Foreign Affairs in England, for the aid of the Government in his behalf. An application was made, therefore, by the English Government, through Lord NAPIER, to Secretary CASS, for the assistance of our Government in the matter, who thereupon forwarded instructions to General JOHNSTON, directing him to use every effort in his power to find the child and secure its restoration to the father. As soon as the civil authorities had become established here, the case was placed in the hands of the United States District Attorney. The child, who is only twelve years old, was found with her aunt, who is the fourth wife of SAMUEL RICHARDS, one of the twelve Apostles. The mother of the girl had returned to the States.

Upon examination the Court ordered that the child should be restored to her father, and she will accordingly be sent on as soon as a suitable escort can be found, to Lord NAPIER, at Washington.

The Hon. C. E SINCLAIR, one of the Associate Justices of this Territory, arrived in the last mail from the States. It is with pleasure that we announce his arrival, for we have long looked for the arrival of the Judges who are necessary for the organization of the Judicial branch of our Territorial Government.

We are informed that KIRK ANDERSON, Esq, formerly connected with the editorial department of the Missouri Republican, is now on his way out here with a complete printing press, and everything requisite for the publication of a large newspaper in this city.

This has been more needed here, perhaps, than anything else.

With a regular weekly communication to the States, a "Gentile" Press, and an independent Judiciary, we can wish for no other aid to effect the regeneration of this Territory than the influence of energetic, fearless ministers of the Gospel, and these we must have.

The Sixth Regiment of Infantry, in command of Col. ANDREWS, arrived at Fort Bridger during the past week. This regiment have come over the new road explored last Summer by Lieut. BARNARD, which, saving the old road at the crossing of the South Fork of the Platte, passes through Bridger's Pass, and strikes the old road again at Fort Bridger. They report the road as a good one in regard to grass and water, but it will take a great deal of work to make it equal to the old one for travel. It is, however, some 75 or 80 miles shorter.

The Sixth has been ordered to proceed immediately to Fort Walla Walla, the seat of the Indian war in Oregon; they will not, consequently, enter the valley, but move from Bridger directly up the Oregon trail. Lieutenant-Colonel CANBY, with two companies of the Tenth, and one company of Dragoons, will relieve Col. HOFFMAN in the command of the post at Bridger. Several of the officers of the Army now stationed here have procured leaves of absence.

Governor CUMMING has rented the large, fine house of the late Secretary BABBITT He boarded up to this time with Mr. STAINES. A. B. C.

Brigham to the Saints.

Our correspondent at Salt Lake City forwards files of the Deseret News. BRIGHAM YOUNG has directed the publication of his discourses to the people after a long lapse, during which neither his utterances nor those of the Elders have appeared in the columns of the Mormon organ. A speech of BRIGHAM, delivered in June, contains a passage which indicates that the Presidency decides to remain in occupancy. The stories of the contemplated departure of the Saints to some retired spot appear to be entirely exploded. BRIGHAM, after a long homily, very temperately worded, gives his followers this counsel:

I will now say a few words on business affairs. A road up Provo cañon is much needed, and we want ten or twenty companies of laborers to go to work upon it forthwith in order to finish it in about fifteen days, so that you can go into the valleys of the Weber where there is plenty of timber.

I understand that a Company has been chartered by the Legislative Assembly to make that road, and if those men will come forward we will take the responsibility of making it. We shall need about five hundred laborers. I also want a mill-race dug some three quarters of a mile in length, and an excavation made for the foundation of a grist-mill. When that is done, we will plan something else, for we want every one to have the privilege of being actively engaged in some useful occupation. We want men to labor in every mechanical pursuit that they can, for I believe that the time will come when we will have to depend upon our own resources, and I pray the Lord to so hedge up the way and shut down the gate that we may be compelled to depend upon our own manufacturing for the comforts of life.

Last Spring I wanted to detect some spirits that I could not make manifest to the people, only in the course I then took. There are those who, when they know that they have liberty to act in a certain manner, do not care about moving in that direction; but if you say they cannot or shall not, they are then very anxious to do so That class reminds me of the Frenchman who loaned his money, and upon learning that the borrower was likely to fail, asked him when he could pay him. The answer was, "To-day, if you wish it." "Why! have you got it?" "Yes," "Oh, if you have got it, I do not want it; but if you have not got it, I want it very bad." With the exception of a short time during the late difficulties, all persons have always had the privilege of going away from here when they pleased, and have been repeatedly invited to do so if they wished to, and a certain class did not avail themselves of the privilege; but when I said that they should not go until I gave them permission, we learned those spirits and they have gone.

I want the clay well ground and well worked over. I want the pure in heart to receive their blessings, and to be free from the oppressions of the wicked.

God bless you brethren and sisters: Amen.

☞ Tiffany & CO.,
NO. 550 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK,
ANNOUNCE THAT THEY HAVE SECURED THE ENTIRE BALANCE OF THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH SUBMARINE CABLE
Now on board the
U. S STEAM-FRIGATE NIAGARA.

In order to place it within the reach of all classes, and that every family in the United States may possess a specimen of this wonderful mechanical curiosity, they propose to cut the Cable into pieces of four inches in length, and mount them neatly with brass ferules.

Each piece will be accompanied with a copyrighted fac simile certificate of that it is cut from the genuine Cable. Twenty miles of it have been actually submerged and taken up from the bottom of the ocean. This will first be sold in precisely the condition in which the great Cable now lies in the bed of the Atlantic.

Orders will be received from dealers and others for not less than 100 pieces at a time, at $25 per hundred. Retail price 50 cents each.

Each order must be accompanied by the money, in funds current in New York, as it will not be possible to open accounts. A register will be kept of the orders, as they are received, which will be filled in turn without favor or partiality.

A large portion of the specimens will be ready, it is expected, for delivery within a week.

NEW-YORK, Aug. 21, 1858.

ATLANTIC CABLE NOTICE.

TIFFANY & CO. beg to inform the public that, although they have arranged with the Novelty Works—(in addition to their former facilities)—to mount the Atlantic Cable, the demand is so great that they are not able to supply the orders for the four-inch specimens as fast as received. They, therefore, apprise the trade and others that while they will continue to receive orders, to be filled in their turn, as heretofore, they will sell the cable, in the state it comes from the Niagara, at 62½ cents per lineal foot, in lengths of not less than forty feet, and in smaller quantities at $1 per foot, which will enable purchasers to have sections mounted to suit themselves.

CAUTION.

Attention is respectfully invited to the following letter from

CYRUS W. FIELD, ESQ.

NEW-YORK, Aug. 24, 1858.

Messrs. TIFFANY & Co.—Gentlemen: At your request, and in justice to you, I am bound to state that I disposed of the entire balance of the Atlantic Cable, on the United States steam frigate Niagara, to your firm, and that if any other party claims to have any portion thereof, it must either have been procured from you, or from the small specimens which were distributed on board before the cable was laid, in which case the quantity was too small to be worthy of notice.

There is a peculiar interest attached to the cable which you have bought—twenty miles of it were actually submerged in the ocean and recovered, while through all of it the electric signals were being transmitted during the whole time occupied in laying the cable.

Of course, any quantity of cable can be manufactured in England, and many specimens have been circulated in this country, but to few if any of these, attaches the peculiar value which the cable purchased by you possesses, from the fact that they were part and parcel of the cable which is now actually laid. I remain, gentlemen, very truly your friend. CYRUS W. FIELD.

From the New-York News.
This work possesses peculiar attractions. The sketches are instinct with a living and vivid power. The heroine of the story, Lucy Tyrrell, is a real character ; and the work is consequently quite as much matter of fact as fiction. It is a book in all respects unexceptionable, and in many respects worthy a place among the classic literature of the land.
From the Springfield Republican.
This is a work of high literary merit, and of unusual interest to American readers. It illustrates the most interesting period of our history—the age of American chivalry—and it gives us a true picture of the opinions and habits, as well as leading personages of that eventful period.

THE PATENT CARBON PAINT FROM COAL.—This valuable paint is unequaled in beauty, economy and durability, for ships, iron work, machinery, japanning of leather and metals, roofing and general house-painting. Compared with lampblack it dries quicker, endures far greater heat, and as a preservative against corrosion is unequaled by any paint in the world. It is a pure and beautiful black, a remarkably quick dryer, mixes readily in all colors, and consumes but one-fifth the oil that lampblack requires.

Sea and Ship News.

THE RUSSIAN FRIGATE.—This fine vessel-of-war, now on the stocks at the ship-yard of WILLIAM H. WEBB, is fast progressing towards completion. The workmen are now engaged in laying ways under her preparatory to a launch, which will take place the last of this month. When all the arrangements are complete, and the vessel is launched, the Grand Duke Constantine will be notified of the event by telegraph. The figure-head—the Russian black eagle with two heads, each surmounted by a crown, (said to be emblematic of her partiality for China tea and cold Turkey,)—has been placed upon her bows.

Coroner's Inquests.

THE LATE STABBING CASE IN GREENWICH-STREET.—Coroner CONDERY yesterday took the ante-mortem examination of HENRY MCARDLE, who was stabbed on Tuesday evening last by PATRICK KEATING, in Greenwich-street. The physician declares that MCARDLE will not survive his injuries. MCARDLE corroborated the statement of the affair as published in last Wednesday's TIMES. He was sitting on his stoop when KEATING, without any provocation, stepped up to h'm, called him a "son of a b—h," and then stabbed him in the breast and abdomen. MCARDLE had one of his children in his arms at the time. He had known KEATING eight years, but never had had any difficulty with him, and could assign no reason for the assault. The wife of MCARDLE told the same story. At the close of the examination, KEATING, who had been previously locked up, was remanded to prison to await the result of the injuries inflicted.

FATAL FALLS.—MARY HALL, an Irish woman, 27 years of age, fell from the third story of No 27 Bayard street, and died from the injuries received. PATRICK MCCUE, a boy 5 years old, fell from an upper window of No. 93 Baxter-street, and was killed instantly. Inquests were held Saturday on both bodies, and a verdict of "Accidental death" rendered in each case.

Police Intelligence.

ENGLISH BURGLARS ARRESTED.—Two suspicious looking fellows were observed, on Saturday morning, about 4 o'clock, by Officer Harrold, of the Twentieth Precinct, prowling rather suspiciously about various dwellings in his beat. The officer, to put them off their guard, commenced playing drunk, a la Toodles, and wound up the interlude by falling flat to the pavement, apparently stupidly drunk. The two men at once took out their burglarious tools and attempted to enter a dwelling-house; but they had hardly commenced operations when the officer pounced upon them in such double-quick time that they were unable to escape. The officer then took them to the Station-house, when one of them turned out to be Rich. Clinton alias Dick Hennessy, a noted English burglar, who has already spent one or two terms in State Prison for burglary. The second prisoner, also an Englishman, gave his name as Thomas Haller. He stated that he had fallen in with Clinton the evening previous, and that Clinton endeavored to persuade him that he could earn a living easier by turning burglar than by following a coarse trade—that he could dress better, and pass off for a gentleman instead of a rude mechanic. He alleged that they were not attempting a burglary when arrested; but that his companion was simply showing him how neatly a house could be entered without detection. A bunch of delicately-worked keys and a heavily-loaded six-shooter, which were found in the prisoner's possession, made the Justice incredulous as to the correctness of his statement. A quantity of similarly-wrought keys and a loaded revolver were found on the person of Clinton. Both were locked up for trial.

DISORDERLY HOUSES BROKEN UP.—Captain Cameron of the Seventh Precinct, and a posse of his men, made a descent last Saturday evening on No. 8 Market-street, and arrested an alleged disreputable house, kept by a woman named Teresa Walker. They took in custody Mrs. Walker, five girls and six men. Mrs. W. gave bail in $500, before Justice STEERS, to answer the charge of keeping a disorderly house. The rest were discharged.... On the same evening Captain Turnbull, of the Eighth Ward, made a descent on No. 53 Wooster-street, and had all the inmates locked up and committed to answer.

LAYING IN A STOCK OF SAUSAGES.—Between 2 and 3 o'clock on Saturday morning, officer Hall, of the Twentieth Ward, detected two youths coming out of the butcher shop of Jacob Smith, No. 521 Eighth-avenue. One had the money-drawer in his possession and the other had a formidable string of sausages thrown over his back. On seeing the officer they darted off at their briskest pace, but the officer succeeded in arresting one of them—him of the sausages. The prisoner, who gave his name as John Dunn, was locked up by Justice KELLY to answer. The place was entered by forcing open one of the shutters of a front window.

A LAWYER CHARGED WITH PERJURY.—Mortimer de Mott, a lawyer, who has an office in No. 16 Wall-street, was arrested yesterday, charged with perjury. Mr. C. L. Taillant, of No. 403 Fourth-avenue, is the complainant. He alleges that the perjury was committed before the Supreme Court, and that through the commission of the perjury, de Mott is retaining $2 000 of his (Taillant's) money in his possession. The case is to undergo examination before Justice KELLY, at the Jefferson Market Police Court. De Mott was detained to await the result

PASSING COUNTERFEIT MONEY.—A well-dressed young man, giving his name as Charles Lacher, on Friday evening passed a $3 bill on the Brandon Bank of Vermont, at the liquor store of Thomas Oates, No. 745 Second avenue. He called for a drink, gave the bill in payment, and was handed back the proper change. The bill was soon discovered to be worthless, and the young man was pursued and arrested. Another counterfeit bill on the same bank was found in his possession. He was detained by Justice STEERS for examination.

PUSHED DOWN STAIRS.—Mrs. Epsy Kerrigan, residing at No. 247 East Thirteenth-street, on Saturday evening had an altercation with John Hunter, living in the same house. She pushed Hunter down a flight of stairs, fracturing his skull, and, it is believed, fatally injuring him. Mrs. Kerrigan was arrested, and committed by Justice STEERS to prison.

STABBING.—Morris Morris and Henry Kober, two Germans, had an altercation, at a late hour Friday evening, at No. 36 Essex-street, when Morris drew a knife and stabbed Kober in the side, inflicting a dangerous wound. Morris was arrested, and held by Justice STEERS to answer. The injured man was taken to his residence.

PISTOL EXPLOSION.—John McCarthy, a boy about 14 years of age, was handling a loaded pistol, Friday evening, in Thomas-street when it suddenly exploded, injuring three of his fingers and wounding another boy in the leg. The boys were taken home and their wounds dressed.

CAUTION TO SOUTHERN MERCHANTS.

I understand a large quantity of counterfeit and imitation Scheidam Aromatic Schnapps has been sent to this market from Philadelphia, and sold to some of the Wholesale Grocers, Druggists and Liquor Merchants, who are offering it for sale much below my wholesale price. I would caution the Southern and Western Merchants from purchasing the vile stuff, as it is nothing but American Whisky flavored with Juniper, and reduced some thirty per cent. below proof. Brooklyn Intelligence.

A SAD AFFAIR—A CITIZEN ROBBED AND FATALLY INJURED.—At an early hour yesterday morning, Officer BOYD, of the First Precinct, while in the vicinity of Johnson and Lawrence-streets, was called upon by a citizen to take charge of a man found in the area of house No. 35 Lawrence-street. The officer immediately obeyed the summons, and upon visiting the place indicated, found upon the steps, in an insensible condition, Mr. THEODORE AUSTIN. He caused him to be taken to his residence, No. 38, the same street, when Dr. PALMEDO and Police Surgeon BALL were called in. Mr. AUSTIN continued in an insensible condition for several hours, when he aroused and stated that he crossed the Fulton Ferry about 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and was then somewhat under the influence of liquor. He went to the saloon of Ex-Policeman ADAM HAUGHT, No. 50 Fulton-street, and after remaining there a few hours he ordered a carriage to take him home, and that is the last he remembers. The physicians, upon examining Mr. AUSTIN, found a severe scalp wound on the top of his head, and also that his neck had been dislocated, or the spinal column was so injured as to render his recovery hopeless.

Mr. AUSTIN also made known that he had been robbed of about $200 in money and a gold watch. Upon learning these facts, the Deputy-Superintendent of Police and Capt. SMITH, of the First Precinct, commenced to investigate the case. Their inquiries resulted as follows: Mr. AUSTIN arrived in Brooklyn about 10 o'clock, A. M., on Saturday, and soon after visited the saloon of Mr. HAUPT, No. 50 Fulton-street, where he remained until 4 o'clock P. M. yesterday morning. He then expressed a desire to go home, when at Mr. HAUPT's suggestion, he went to the Fulton Ferry (accompanied by Mr. H.) and there engaged a hackman named HUGH BRANNON, to carry him home. As the hack was leaving, a man named JAMES GILLEN, proposed to accompany him home and forced himself into the carriage. The next seen of Mr. AUSTIN, he was found in the area of house No. 35 Lawrence street, fatally injured. The hackman BRANNON, and a man named JAS. SMITH, who rode on the box with him, have been arrested. Their statement is, that they left Mr. AUSTIN on the stoop where found, under the supposition that it was his residence, and that is all they know about the matter.

The police were active all day yesterday in endeavoring to explain the mystery in which the case was involved. The result of their examination is, that Mr. AUSTIN was robbed before he arrived at the house where he was found—No. 35 Lawrence street. That he was left there by the hackman who, supposed that it was his home, that being somewhat under the influence of liquor Mr. AUSTIN accidentally fell over the railing upon the steps leading to the basement door of the house, and thereby sustained the injuries described above. There are many corroborating circumstances which go to show the probability of this theory. The scalp wound on the top of the head, the injury to the spinal column, can be accounted for in this way. There are also some marks on the building which would seem to favor the idea that he fell over the railing.

It was at first supposed that a murder and robbery had been committed, but the Police are fully satisfied that the robbery was successfully committed before reaching the house, and in the absence of any apparent motive for the commission of the more heinous crime, it is but fair to presume that they are correct in their conclusions. The parties arrested, however, will be held until the whole mystery is unraveled. Mr. AUSTIN resides at No. 38 Laurence-street, one door east of Johnson. He is a dealer in poultry, and has a stand in Washington Market. Until 10 o'clock yesterday morning it was supposed that there was a chance for his recovery. About this time the lower portion of his body became paralyzed and he stated to his friends around him that his end was near, and expressed a wish to make his will. His mind being perfectly clear, Ex Mayor STEVENS and JUDAH B. VOORHIES, Esq., complied with the request, and his dying wishes were attended to. He leaves his property, valued at some $10,000, to his wife, while she remains single. Mr. AUSTIN is about 40 years old, and has a wife and five children. For several years past he has been identified with the American organization in the Foruth Ward, and was much esteemed for his social and generous qualities by all who knew him.

SYRACUSE DELEGATES.—The Assembly Seventh District Convention has elected SETH B. COLE, Esq. and SAML. H. DEMOTT, and alternates, JAS. W. RIGGS, for COLE, and —— TOBY for DEMOTT. The delegation from the First District is JOHN N. STEARNS and Justice STILLWELL. In the Second District, JOHN CASHAW Port Warden, and CHAS. PARKER.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—Mr. ROBERT CRAIG, who was run over by a cart in Willoughby street a few days ago, died yesterday.

A SUNDAY PRIZE FIGHT.—A prize fight occurred yesterday afternoon, in a field back of Hudson City, some two or three miles from the Hoboken Ferry, between a couple of bruisers named TOM. HUBBARD, a New-York boatman, and SITTERLY alias "Schenectady Boy," a gentleman residing in Williamsburg that "does nothing" for a living. The affair was kept very private, and the pugilists were accompanied only by some forty Fulton Market and Brooklyn fellows. HUBBARD is some 24 years of age; weight 160, and hardy and muscular. Schenectady Boy is 35 years of age and weighs about 135 pounds. The latter has considerable reputation as a rough-and-tumble bruiser, but has never before been pitted. The odds being apparently so much in favor of HUBBARD, the New-York boys were freely offering $5 and $6 to $2, and all such offers were readily taken by the Brooklynites. The parties fought eighteen rounds, it is said, in "handsome style," when Schenectady Boy was declared winner. HUBBARD was badly punished about the face and eyes and will not be presentable in society for some time to come. Schenectady Boy escaped face marks, but received some heavy blows on the neck and body. HUBBARD was chagrined at his defeat and offered to fight again in two weeks. The parties returned home between 5 and 6 o'clock last evening over the Hoboken and Jersey City Ferries.

FESTIVAL OF ST. QUIETUS.—The Festival of St. Quietus the Martyr, whose relics are preserved in St. Mary's Church, Hoboken, was celebrated at the above church, yesterday, with pomp and solemnity. The sermon at High Mass was preached by the Rev. Father HECKER, Superior of the Congregation of Missionary Priests of St. Paul the Apostle. The sermon at Vespers was delivered by the Rev. Father DEHON, of the same congregation. The attendance was quite large. The relics of the Saint were exposed for the veneration of the faithful.

ARREST OF SUPPOSED BURGLARS.—JOSEPH MARSH, alias Big Yank, and WILLIAM JONES, alias Molly Match, were arrested on Saturday, by Chief-of-Police HAINES, on suspicion of having robbed Mr. GILKISON'S store, in Montgomery-street, of $500 worth of goods, on Tuesday night last.

KILLED BY THE CARS.—A flagman named RICHARD ANDERSON was killed about 11¾ o'clock, Friday night, at the Prospect-street crossing, by the Erie emigrant train, by being caught between the locomotive and the fence.

MONDAY, Sept. 6—A. M.

The Foreign Trade at the port of New-York the past week shows a fair degree of activity both in the entry of Goods and the amount actually marketed. The supplies in the Bonded Warehouse are being gradually drawn down, thus evidencing the demand upon the Importers for the Fall trade. The improvement, though not all that could be wished, after the long depression through the Spring and early Summer months, is being quite sensibly felt by the Dry Goods people, and their hopes for the future are strengthened, within the week or ten days past, by an increased movement of trade and travel over the leading Railways, as compared with the general dullness of July, and the first weeks in August. The entries of Foreign Merchandise at this port, last week, including the Dry Goods table in our last paper, amount to £3,530,472, as against $3,576,962, the corresponding week last season. The clearances to foreign Countries of Domestic Produce and Miscellaneous Goods, were $1,297,938, as against $1,197,011, the same week last season. The Export of Specie is $562,087, as against $287,500 the same week in 1857. The Sub-Treasury balance on Saturday afternoon stood $13,077,009, against $13,418,098 at the close of the previous week. The receipts of the week from Customs are $858,000. Of the payments out, $500,000 went in Gold coin to the New-Orleans office. The Havana steamer on Saturday brought in $301,000 from the same quarter, believed to be in Silver. The whole Specie movement of the week shows an apparent difference against the Banks of $521,000, but as they had nearly the full benefit of $1,434,000 previously received from California, and but partially counted on the last statement, the probability is the average to be made up this afternoon will show an increase of $800,000 or $1,000,000 on the last figure of $27,817,006. The change in the Loan column is not expected to be important, as the demand for money during the week was only moderate, although the terms to demand borrowers and on short bills continue to rule at the low rates quoted through most of the Summer. Exchange on London closed steady for the Saturday packet 109⅛@109⅜ on London, f.5.12½@f.5 11½ to the dollar on Paris.

As we expect to be able in a day or two to present the official Custom-House returns of trade at this port to the 1st inst., we omit, this morning, our usual comparative summary by weeks. The semi-official difference in the Import entries for the calendar year 1858, compared with last season, to the present time, (including the broken week in September,) is a decrease of $72,727,016, or about forty per cent.

The market was unsteady through most of the week, and a declining one up to Friday afternoon, when prices partially re-acted, and on Saturday assumed a fair degree of firmness again—closing, as will be seen above, nearly as well as the week before. Rock Island shares are a prominent exception. The previous advance gave way before some heavy sales, by a single broker, on Friday afternoon, on 30 days option, though the stock is said to have been sold for a real holder out of the City. The lowest price made was 71½ ₽ cent, from which there was an advance on Saturday to 72½ ₽ cent. The most active dealings were in New-York Central, of which the Street continues heavily short, although the stock has now more support at the Board of Brokers than a week or ten days ago. The passenger traffic on the line, from the Summer pleasure travel, has been very large of late, and some improvement is begun to be felt in both this and the Erie line in the way of Merchandise freights going West and Cattle and Produce freights coming East. The compensation for the business continues too low, but this is likely soon to be remedied by a better understanding between the rival managers, and to this desirable change nothing contributes more sensibly than the prospect of a larger traffic for division between them. The other great lines to the West—the Pennsylvania Central and Baltimore and Ohio—are to be brought into the new arrangement, we understand, by general conference at Philadelphia to-morrow. The Erie shares continue to show a steady demand at 17⅜@18⅛ for the Cash Stock, and there is also a fair request, though at very low rates, for the unsecured Bonds of the Company. The September interest due upon the second and third mortgages is now being paid off, by installments, at the office of the Roads foot of Duane-street. The Western share list has been more or less affected by the decline, and heavy sales making in Rock Island, though at the close of the week, this feeling was qualified by the better reports from the traffic on the Wabash Valley, Southern Michigan and Illinois Central lines. The Southern Michigan foots up for August, we understand, $180,000, as against $172,000 same month last season. In consequence of this, the second mortgage of the concern, so long depressed or unmarketable—notwithstanding the prompt payment of interest—has advanced 5@7 ₽ cent., and the movement in this direction has naturally improved the hopes of the management in ridding the Company of its embarrassments. The reduction in the operating expenses for August, we hear, is even more important than the gross result of the month's traffic. An authorized statement will appear in a day or two. The demand for Pacific Mail shares was active through most of the week, and a line of short contracts at 88@88½, 30@60 days' option of the seller was freely taken up, the stock subsequently rising to 90@91 and finally to 92 ₽ cent. Panama and Delaware and Hudson also show a steady demand at the full previous rates. In the new Federal Loan the transactions are very limited. Most of it has been placed by the holders, in Bank, on low rates of interest, and the probability is that there will not be a very free movement until we near the time at which the first regular coupon will begin to run. The sales in the meanwhile are made free of interest. There is nothing important to report in State Stocks. There is more disposition to meet the market with Tennessees, at about 91 ₽ cent., while the offerings of Missouris are less free at 84¾ ₽ cent. cash, and 84½ seller 60 days. The general market closed firm.

The White-Stebbins Canal Grant and its Accessory Transit privilege, from the State of Nicaragua, are about to be brought into practical use, as far, at least, as to place upon the San Juan river and Lake Nicaragua a new line of small steamers, to connect the Atlantic and Pacific Steamship trade by this route. Colonel STEBBINS having some months since resigned the Presidency of the Canal Company, his place is to be taken by Mr. JOHN P. YELVERTON, formerly of the Peoples' Bank, and late of the Sandusky Railroad Company. Mr. Y. has just resigned the head of the last-named concern for this object, and has already secured three Lake and River boats, the first of which, called the Cass-Yrissari, (after making an experimental trip on Saturday last) leaves immediately for San Juan del Norte. We hear that it is the purpose of the Company at first to charter, instead of buying two steamships on this side, to make the half-monthly trips, and to run these in the California passenger trade, in connexion with the Hermann and Washington on the Pacific—the latter two being decidedly a different, though coöperating Company. The first Atlantic steamer will be dispatched from this port about the 10th October, to meet the Hermann, already two weeks on her way round Cape Horn. The Canal rights remain as originally divided under the Grant of 1850, one hundred and ninety-two in number, to each of which 100 single or Accessory Transit Shares are attached. The capital contemplated, in addition to these rights, for the future purchase of steamship property, is $1,080,000; making the whole real and nominal capital together $3,000,000. Under the old Accessory Transit the division was 200 single shares to each Canal right, and 40,000 shares, valued at $30 each, to VANDERBILT for his steamships in 1852, making the real and nominal capital together $7,840,000, exclusive of the Canal rights, which remained a separate property, now confirmed to WHITE and his associates, under the Cass-Yrissari Treaty. It is claimed for the new enterprise that it has the political support of both Governments, and the strong guaranty of our own, as well as the best wishes of all parties, particularly in California, interested in keeping open and free a duplicate route to the Pacific emigration.

We have received the following, with a request to publish:

For the information of the holders of what are called the "Land Grant Bonds" of the La Crosse and Milwaukee Railroad Company, we deem it proper to state, that the Trustees have registered and countersigned Bonds to the amount of four millions of dollars, and no more. The Bonds of $1,000 each are numbered from 1 to 3,950, and those of $500 each are numbered from 1 to 100. The modified trust deed provides, in effect, against any further issue of bonds, which shall interfere with the prior lien of the present bondholders on the Road, with its appurtenances, from Portage City to La Crosse; and no Bonds, affecting such prior lien, will be countersigned by the Trustees.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, Sept. 4, 1858.

We understand that the American Railway negotiation in London, alluded to by the last telegraphic dispatch from Halifax, has reference to a Company not generally known on this side, but organized to secure a broad guage line from the Erie Road at Olean, or Little Valley, through Pennsylvania and Ohio, to connect at Cincinnati with the broad guage Ohio and Mississippi to St. Louis. The programme has never been fully published on this side, and the reported negotiation—the substance of which, we hear through a party recently from London, there is no reason to contradict—has been conducted with singular boldness, both in London and Paris, the names and influence of the American Ministers in both Capitals being employed by leave! We shall, probably, know more of the affair by the next mail.

The following are the Interior Exchange rates and prices for Land Warrants, reported by Messrs LE HURAY & CO., No. 9 Wall-street, on Saturday:

Secretary Guthrie.

I was surprised to see in your paper the other day a communication from your Washington correspondent "Aquiday," lauding the present Secretary of the Treasury for withholding money from those to whom it is due—that the Government has illegally exacted for duties. Has it come to this, that a Government official has to be puffed into notoriety for his expertness in withholding money so received by the Government? and another Secretary, Mr. GUTHRIE, who had the manliness to be honest and pay back the money thus wrongfully exacted, is charged as though he had done wrong, in making restitution of that which had been wrongfully taken. Surely honesty is the best policy, whether in Government officials or individuals. JUSTICE.

The Litchfield Bank.

From the New Haven Journal.

The hearing in the case of the Litchfield Bank was concluded on Thursday evening. The following decree, having been agreed to by the counsel of the parties, was entered in the case:

That the temporary injunction in this case made, be so far modified as only to enjoin and prohibit said bank and the officers and agents thereof, from issuing or putting into circulation any of the bills of said bank which have been hypothecated or left as security by said bank in the hands of any of the creditors of said bank, or left with any of the agents of said bank, or in any manner allowing the same to go into circulation, and that said bank shall, as far as possible, prevent all such bills from going into circulation.

That the case be continued under such modified injunction until the application to this Court for a further hearing by either the Bank Commissioners or the President and Cashier of said bank; on which application a time shall be fixed by this Court for a further hearing of this case; and at least six days' notice shall be given by the parties applying, if the same shall be the Bank Commissioners, to the President and the Cashier of said bank, each; and if said application shall be by the President and Cashier of said bank, then such notice shall be given to each of the Bank Commissioners; and until such further hearing, the said bank and all its officers shall be under the special supervision of the Bank Commissioners, and all further questions shall be reserved for the final hearing on the case.

The reporter of the New-Haven Journal and Courier says:

It is understood that arrangements are in progress with parties abundantly responsible, by which the suggestions of Judge ELLSWORTH are to be carried out, and the bank is to be placed upon a sound footing, if an investigation into the present condition of its assets shall warrant it.

Canal Receipts at Tide-Water.

From the Albany Argus.

The receipts at tide-water by the Canals of this State, of flour, Wheat, Corn and Barley, for the fourth week of August, 1857 and 1858, have been as follows:

	Flour, bbls.	Wheat, bush.	Corn, bush.	Barley, bush
1857	15,101	9,334	387,746	26,736
1858	83,962	139,215	319 300	618
Increase	68,861	Inc. 129,881	Dec. 68,446	Dec 20,118

The aggregates of the receipts of the above articles, so far, for the years 1857 and 1858, have been:

	Flour, bbls.	Wheat, bush.	Corn, bush.	Barley, bush.
